WARNS OF HEAVIER JAP BLOW

Latest Pictures From Guadalcanal, Where U. S. Still Holds

Shake-Up of War Agencies Demanded

HOUSE REPORT HITS CONFUSION

Charges War Can Be Lost In Washington, Calls For Simplified Control.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A complete reshuffling of top war agencies under a new super control board was recommended today in a congressional report which said:

"Those officials who have charge of the war production program including the mobilization of manpower have not yet grasped the meaning of modern war."

The report, bristling with criticism of the present set-up, was issued by the special house committee on national defense migration.

It urged subordination of the war production board, the selective service administration, the war manpower commission and office of price administration to a new super agency to be known as the office of war mobilization.

Asserting "our materials distribution system is breaking down and that "hoarding of raw materials has become a nationwide phenomenon," the committee declared:

"This war can be lost in Washington . . . despite numerous realignments, ten months after Pearl Harbor, business-as-usual considerations still per-

TAX BILL READY

Revised Measure Due to Go To Roosevelt Today.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Congress was ready to submit formally to the American people today the biggest tax bill in history as the first great installment of the war.

The legislation adds an estimated $8,000,000,000 in new revenues, bringing to approximately $25,000,000,000 the total to be collected in federal taxes for 1943.

Both senate and house were expected to give speedy approval to the compromise draft adopted Saturday by a joint conference committee, thus routing it to President Roosevelt's desk in time for the new excise taxes to become applicable on Nov. 1. This would put $50,000,000 in the treasury next month over and beyond the excise levies now in force.

SURVIVORS LAND

American Ship Sunk; Six Lost, 29 Rescued.

AN EAST COAST PORT —(U.P.)—Nine survivors of a small American merchant ship, torpedoed and sunk off the northern coast of South America early in October, have been landed here, it was disclosed today.

Six of the ship's crew were lost and 29 were saved by a United States navy vessel, and landed at a Caribbean port. The dead included three wounded by the torpedo explosion who died aboard the rescue vessel.

U. S. Doesn't Want Your Hose Till You've Worn 'Em Out.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Ladies, use up your silk and nylon hose, the government doesn't want them until you are through with them.

This advice was sent out today by the WPB to clarify a recent announcement asking the women to save their discarded silk and nylon hose until machinery can be established to collect the worn out stockings and salvage their threads for war purposes.

WASHINGTON — An influx of protest mail spurred a movement among senators today to surround the proposed military draft of 18 and 19 year old men with protective restrictions for their schooling, training and off-duty activities.

Letters from mothers protesting against the induction of their youthful sons and complaining about interruptions in their studies were reported piling up on legislators' desks, as well as petitions from organizations urging that

Puts Bromfield's Name On Check, Does A Bad Job

A 16-year-old Monroe township boy who made the mistake of trying to copy Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield's signature on a $6 forged check was under a suspended sentence to the Boys Industrial school at Lancaster today.

The forgery was detected by a North Main street clothing dealer who discovered that Bromfield's name was spelled incorrectly and felt pretty certain that a man of the Richland county author's fame wouldn't make an error like that.

The first name of the forged signature was almost indistinguishable and the last name was spelled "Bronfield." The check was payable to "Earl Au" and was marked "for Sarl Au."

The youth admitted the forgery in county juvenile court and was placed under suspended sentence by Judge Stuart H. Cramer. Juvenile authorities were trying to find a farm job for the boy today.

Army-Bound, $2,300 He Saved In 2 Years Goes Into Bonds

Twenty - year - old Thomas Schwartz, Oak street road, is going to do "double duty" for Uncle Sam.

First, he is leaving for army induction Oct. 31. He's already passed his physical and all he's waiting on now is an army uniform and assignment to a training center.

Secondly, he has taken his savings, $2,300, and invested them in war bonds.

"Not bad for two years," was his comment to a postoffice clerk yesterday as he plodded down the $2,300 in cash and told the clerk to "put it in bonds."

He saved the money in the two years that he worked as an electrician's helper at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Schwartz is single and lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schwartz at their Oak street road home.

Pep Rally At Central Park Planned For Massillon Game

Designed to develop public enthusiasm to an all-time high, the Girl Leaders' club of Mansfield Senior high school will launch an all-out pep rally in Central park Friday evening, prior to the Mansfield-Massillon game.

Urging a Marine offensive assault and a Stalingrad defense, pep promoters will parade from the American Legion home to the park at 5:45 p. m. with the Senior high band booming martial airs while Dorothy Arlin and Anna Marie Fischer lead school songs.

"Lift your voice in this maul Massillon mission," is the appeal of the Leaders' club.

With Gilbert Baird as master of ceremonies the park program will open with singing directed by A. LeMoine Derr, aided by cheer leaders.

An appeal to "beat Massillon for the city's sake" will be voiced by Mayor W. J. Locke and Dr. W. E. Wygant, representing the downtown coaches, will explain how the second-guessers help with football games.

Bill Doolittle, 1941 honorary captain, will stir the victory surge with a pep talk. Adam Brandt, a casualty of last year's Massillon game, will also be on the program.

Glenn G. Rohleder, Senior high principal, and W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, will sound the "we must win" and "Let's Go" orders. Closing with the "Fight, Team, Fight" song led by Derr, the peppers will snake-dance their way to the stadium with the band blaring defiance at the invading hosts.

Her last feature picture was "Joan of Paris," made last year by RKO and released early in 1942.

Scrap collected last week at only two of the city's schools remained to be weighed today in the News-Journal trophy contest as pupils continued their scrap hunting to compete for the $25 war bond to be awarded by W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, for the winner in this week's collections.

Carl L. Stough, county salvage chairman, said only the St. Peter's and Woodland schools collections had not been weighed today. The News-Journal trophy will not be awarded until all the schools have reported. St. Peter's, on the basis of reliable estimates, is one of the leading contenders for the trophy.

CITY TO GET 'WAR SCHOOL'

Blackouts, Bombings to Take Place at Demonstration In Stadium Oct. 31, Nov. 1.

Because of Mansfield's strategic position as a central city in a vast munitions producing area, a two-day war protection school, sponsored by Purdue university and the Chemical Warfare service will be held here Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

Assurance that the school—never before allotted to cities under 300,000 population—was given by telephone today to Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense coordinator, by Col. Arthur D. Patterson, fifth regional director of national defense, Cleveland. Sessions will be held in Mansfield Senior high school stadium.

During July and September, various city officials and civilian defense group leaders attended similar schools of state-wide character conducted in Brookside stadium, Cleveland.

Admission at the Mansfield school will be by invitation only, Judge Kalbfleisch said today, and public officials and defense unit leaders from cities and towns in a 30-mile radius will be asked to attend.

Demolition bombs may rock the city, crazy flames light the sky, miniature buildings topple while airplanes drone overhead as chemical experts from Purdue and the Army conduct realistically simulated problems arising from air raids or other enemy attack.

HALTS JOB

Crusher Breaks Down, Airport Work at Standstill.

Work on the new hard-surfaced runway at the Mansfield airport was stalled again today when the crusher supplying stone and slag for the runway broke down at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company plant. The crusher is owned by R. O. Darling and Son, Mansfield contractors.

County Engineer Howard Sword said operations on the project would be halted until the crusher is put in order again. Obtaining the necessary repair parts will be difficult because of war priorities, he predicted.

The county engineer estimated that about 76 per cent of the work exclusive of the "black-top" surface has been completed. The excavating is nearly done and much of the slag base has been rolled into the excavation.

Solomon Battle Crisis Ahead of Us, Says Knox

Secretary Cautions That Japs Haven't Yet Thrown Full Strength Into Fight; Navy Bombards Enemy Ammunition Dumps, Lines.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today that he believed that the Japanese "by no means as yet" used their maximum force in the battle of the Solomons.

"It is still a good stiff, hard fight," he told a press conference when asked about the Solomons campaign.

"In my judgment," he said, "the Japanese have by no means as yet exercised their maximum force."

He had no information to add to the most recent navy communique, which told last night of American warships suddenly reappearing in the Solomons.

Knox said that the communiques were being issued as rapidly as information was received by the navy department.

An indication that land-based airplanes may begin to play a much greater part in naval activity was given by the secretary.

Asked if he would comment upon the number of such planes, he said that information could not be disclosed but "the number of land-based planes of the navy is steadily increasing."

He described an Office of War Information report upon effectiveness and efficiency of American warplanes as "extremely well done."

First evidence that the United States soldiers, sailors and marines awaiting a full scale assault for their embattled island airbase were being supported by heavy naval units came last night in a navy announcement of an effective sea bombardment of enemy positions and ammunition dumps on northwestern Guadalcanal.

Throughout Oct. 17, American planes blasted at the enemy's island foothold and for three days, beginning Oct. 16, Allied bombers repeatedly pounded the strong Japanese force of warships, transports and cargo vessels in the Shortland island area.

In two days, Japanese losses in the Solomons were raised to 340 destroyed planes, as eight enemy bombers and 11 Zero fighters of a 40-plane force were shot down in an attempt to bomb the American-held airfield of Guadalcanal.

In a raid on the enemy base of Santa Isabel island, 115 miles north of Guadalcanal, army flying fortress bombers and navy-marine fighters strafed and burned 12 Japanese seaplanes caught on the water and shot down a large Japanese flying boat and a twin-engined enemy bomber.

Retaliating for the American warship bombardment, which set off ammunition stores, Japanese ships shelled U. S. installations on the northern coast of Guadalcanal.

No recent Japanese attempt to reinforce their troops has been observed since Oct. 15.

The Allied aerial offensive from the Australian base experienced a comparative lull yesterday after

HOLDING: Russians Cling To Lines In Face Of Dive-Bombing

(By Associated Press)

German dive bombers and fighters resumed a full-scale assault on Stalingrad today after cold rains had driven them from the skies in a short foretaste of winter, but Red army headquarters declared the Russians still held their lines unbroken for the past 36 hours.

As the storm subsided, the German Transocean news agency asserted that only a few square kilometers of Stalingrad was in Soviet hands.

German military quarters, however, emphasized "the tenacity of Soviet resistance."

Soviet reports said troops reinforcements continued to reach defenders of the ruined Volga metropolis and that German long-range guns were shelling the river in an attempt to interrupt the crossings.

Despite the temporary relief afforded by autumnal storms, which forced the gigantic battle back to the World war tactics of artillery barrage and infantry assault, the Red armies were under savage attack by a tank-led German shock troops in a northern factory district.

It was the 57th day of siege.

Behind the battlefront, a Reuters (British news agency), dispatch from the Italian frontier reported that an Italian Alpini regiment had mutinied at Goriza, in northern Italy, when it was ordered to the Russian war zone.

Reuters said that the ringleaders were shot by Fascist military police and that the troops were embarked forcibly without arms.

Patriots were also reported creating trouble for the Axis in Serbia and Yugoslavia.

ADVICE: Admiral Gets Down To Earth On How To Win War

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Admiral Ernest J. King, Ohioan and commander in chief of the United States fleet and chief of naval operations, said last night that this country was fighting a two-ocean war with a one-ocean navy, and "we've got to hold on until we gain some strength."

It was because of that fact, he told the Ohio Society of New York, that the United States could not take the offensive in the Pacific until last August, when Tulagi island in the Solomons was seized.

"The enemy didn't like that. He is resenting it and he is afraid of what it means. The result of his resentment you're reading in your headlines, and don't stop at the headlines. Read the text."

He said the Japanese had the advantage because they have been making war and have intended to do so for a long time. Admiral King did not predict how the battle in the Solomons would come out, but he did say:

"Wherever we have met them on equal terms we've given them better than they have sent."

Admiral King said there are presently 750,000 men in the navy. A year from now, there will be 1,500,000.

"It takes a long time to build the ships of the navy, and the two-ocean navy is not yet in service," he said. "In a year, it will be pretty well along on its way.

"This is going to be a long war. . . . There is no cheap way to win this war except to go in there and slug. There will be no miracles; no inventor is going to come along with a machine to knock the Japs out of their planes.

"Wars are won by killing other men and in no other way. You've three cruisers and a number of other vessels were believed hit in a Sunday night attack on the Japanese naval formation at Buin on Bougainville island.

The Allied bombers, the southwest Pacific command announced last night, engaged in reconnaissance flights north of Australia and attacked at least one Japanese concentration in an undisclosed area.

Australian troops in New Guinea repulsed three counter-attacks about 12 miles north of the Japanese Kokoda base on the northern slope of the Owen Stanley mountains.

The Rekata bay raid by American planes set afire fuel storages. Two of three enemy transports previously damaged and beached on northwest Guadalcanal were destroyed, the navy said.

At the northern end of the Pacific front, the sole Japanese foothold of Kiska in the Aleutians was rocked again with 15 tons of bombs, dropped by American fliers.

In Tokyo, Japan's foreign office spokesman, Tomokazu Hori, told the nation in a broadcast that the Pacific conflict was gradually assuming the phase of a long-term war and warned of a possible general counter-attack by the United States against Japan.

While Japanese imperial headquarters maintained silence on operations in the Solomons, unbroken since the start of the latest offensive, Hori declared that both the Pacific area and Africa as well as Europe were under consideration by United Nations strategists for the creation of a second front.

"Hori warned the nation . . . that the war had now entered a new stage, gradually assuming the phase of a long-term war," Domei news agency reported.

"The first 10-month period of the war of Greater East Asia is just the beginning of what is to come, Hori stated emphatically."

Land Rips Union Organizers, Typewriter Strategists.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the U. S. maritime commission, says his "pets for the duration" are "union organizers, profiteers, typewriter strategists and needle boys."

"As far as the organizers are concerned, for the duration, in my opinion, they ought to be shot at sunrise," he said in addressing the annual meeting of the investment bankers association of America at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel yesterday.

Land advised "typewriter strategists" to let the president and the military experts handle the war, and said of the profiteers "we will get them if they don't get themselves." He did not define "needle boys."

army camps be insulated against liquor and vice.

The senate has scheduled Thursday consideration of the draft legislation, already passed by the house, and Senator Lee (D-Okla) announced he would demand a record vote on an amendment to ban the sale of intoxicants and to enforce anti-vice regulations on and near military posts.

Lee told reporters he believed that if he could obtain a roll call vote the amendment would be adopted, a result conceded likely by several senators.

The house bill would allow high school and college students to finish their academic year.

The senate bill provides that only high school students would be deferred and then only when called up during the last half of the school year.

Also before the senate was a proposed constitutional amendment to give all citizens of 18 or older the right to vote.

There would be a long legal road ahead of this proposal, however, since it would require ratification by three-fourths of the states, even if approved by congress.

There was little outspoken senate opposition to the general proposal to lower the draft age and most controversy was expected to center around the Lee amendment.

front appeared little changed since Sunday night, when the Russians made their last withdrawal.

German field headquarters asserted Nazi troops had occupied another block of houses in the northern suburbs and said mopping-up operations "in the grounds of the gun factory 'Red barricade' " were continuing.

Meanwhile, roundabout Axis reports from Ankara, Turkey, declared that "United States troops which arrived in Syria were being sent to Persia (Iran) and Russia."

These reports, unconfirmed elsewhere, said the Americans were chiefly troops trained in Arizona training camps for mountain warfare, thereby implying that they were being used to bolster Soviet forces in the Caucasus.

The Soviet command made no mention of fighting along the Black sea coast, below Novorossisk, but reported that a series of Nazi attacks were repulsed farther down in the Caucasus in the Mozdok sector, gateway to the Grozny oil fields.

Says Italy Fortifies Adriatic Coast

MOSCOW — (AP) — Italy is engaged in a gigantic fortification work designed to turn the whole Dalmatian zone adjoining the Adriatic into a strong fortress, but the German command at Belgrade in Yugoslavia is objecting, the official Tass news agency reported from Turkey today.

The dispatch said Vittorio Emanuele of Italy recently visited Dalmatia and inspected the fortifications under construction between Ragusa and split along the former Yugoslav coast.

The reporter claimed that 400,000 men, exclusive of Italian soldiers, were engaged in the work which may extend north to the Dinara Alps to protect Italy's port of Fiume.

Another Tass report from Istanbul said Germany, in accordance with Hitler's program of consolidation of his conquests, is broaching the subject of a Balkan federation, similar to the proposed North European federation he is reported to have proposed for Norway, Denmark, and The Netherlands.

Smash Axis Heavily On African Front

CAIRO—(AP)—Heavy and medium United States bombers and RAF planes of every combat type combined yesterday on widespread missions over the Mediterranean and North Africa which cost the Axis at least four ships and heavy damage to planes, camps and transport facilities ashore.

At least two large merchant vessels hit by American heavy bombers at Tobruk;

Three direct hits scored by American medium bombers among grounded enemy planes at an undisclosed enemy landing ground where "one very large and several smaller fires" also were observed.

TRUCK OWNERS REQUESTED TO REGISTER VEHICLES THIS WEEK

Appointment of a Richland county truck transportation committee to register trucks engaged in hauling farm commodities in the county was announced today by Guy Taylor, county AAA chairman and head of the truck committee.

Truck owners must register and apply for certificates of war necessity at the courthouse Thursday, Friday, and Saturday and in Bellville and Shiloh Friday night and Saturday.

The transportation committee of five members was set up by the Richland County Agricultural War board. By virtue of his chairmanship of the war board, Taylor automatically became head of the new committee. Other members are:

A. L. Lockhart, Lexington, representing dairy farmers; J. P. Finnegan, Sharon township, representing hog farmers; Harry Miller, Washington township, for farm truckers, and E. R. Foute, Shelby, representative of farm implement dealers.

Alternates are Waldo Crum, Shelby; Oliver Gramly, Weller township; Roy Heffner, Shiloh, and Lee Henry, Olivesburg. Committee members and registrars serve without pay, Taylor said.

Registration of the estimated 300 farm trucks in the county will begin at 9 a. m. Thursday in the courthouse basement corridor. A committee member will be on duty there from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily through Saturday. Another will be at the Bellville Town hall from 7 to 9 p. m. Friday and from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Saturday. Registrations will be handled at Shiloh from 7 to 9 p. m. Friday and 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Saturday.

Application blanks have been mailed to truck owners who were asked to bring the blanks with them when they register. Applications must be in the hands of the division committee at Detroit and the certificates of necessity approved by Nov. 15 to permit the truck owner to buy tires, gasoline and repair parts.

While all truckers must register, he added that the county committee will deal first with truckers of farm produce.

meate the Washington wartime agencies."

The proposed new agency, which the committee said should be created by legislative action, would be headed by a chairman and primarily would be a policy-determining group.

Under it would be an Office of War Supply, exercising functions now vested in WPB and the procurement divisions of the army, the navy and the maritime commission; an Office of War Manpower, taking over most of the duties of the existing war manpower commission and the selective service administration; and an Office of Economic Stabilization, an operating agency in which the present OPA would be the chief branch.

The committee said it believed the public was prepared to follow "clear and simple" directions but was confused because of "conflicting orders and demands emanating from Washington agencies."

The committee asserted "many of the shortcomings of the war effort to date are traceable to the attempt to run the war from Washington; accused the war manpower commission of seeking service legislation to "underwrite the authority it has failed to exercise," asserted the selective service administration "is obviously unfit" to effect a balanced apportionment of manpower resources between military service and war production, and said the War Production Board has "actively promoted" what it called "the present dispersal of responsibility for production."

Other comments:

Government arsenals and navy yards "are among the worst offenders" in the matter of hoarding labor.

Production has proceeded "from one crisis to another," with the major problem being "the absence of a national production program."

"The war agencies still pursue patchwork methods."

"The most serious single mistake of the War Production Board has been the devolution of its responsibilities to the military agencies who have been incapable of carrying out these responsibilities."

Rep. Bender of Ohio, Republican, was a member of the commission.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Oct. 21.

A golden opportunity for reaching to the highest goal of the ambitions and aspirations, in whatever direction or sphere in action they may lie, is noted in this day's astrological map. Finance, credit, business, major investments and propositions are under this benign figure for increase, expansion, productiveness and high achievement. Seek capital for promotion of such ideals and objectives, as those in place and power should be found susceptible, generous and friendly. Prestige and popularity may be enhanced upder this rule.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of exceptional promise, advancement, progress, as well as increased place and prestige in the social, domestic, cultural and sentimental associations in life. It is a time for reaching for cherished goals in the realm of heart's desire—in whatever channel the aspirations and ambitions may lure. But keep alert to sordid and cunning designs on possessions.

A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed for success and high attainments.

FACES 2 COUNTS

Kadens To Be Arraigned as Robber and Rapist.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The state of Illinois chose two charges of armed robbery and one of rape today to start its prosecution of Irwin Kadens, the army deserter whose spectacular criminal career ended with an unsuccessful holdup yesterday.

Assistant State's Attorney Francis McCurrie said he would ask the grand jury to vote indictments on these charges today or tomorrow.

The federal government is still considering what charges it can lodge against him, McCurrie said, and federal indictments may follow. The Illinois charges include Kaden's bungling attempt to rob a west side currency exchange yesterday and an accusation that he attacked a 17-year-old girl.

Mayor To Tackle Difficulties Over Coffee Shortage

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Mayor Frank J. Lausche is going to try to calm the tempest brewing over Clevelanders' empty coffee pots.

Deluged with complaints about difficulties in buying coffee, the mayor today summoned representatives of chain store grocers, coffee wholesalers and the public to conference for the purpose of "reducing inconveniences to purchasers and clarifying the positions of sellers."

"Telephone calls have poured into my office from persons wanting to buy coffee," Lausche commented. "They have complained about the protracted inconveniences to which they are subjected.

"In addition, calls have come from merchants who said they were being abused about a matter over which they have no control."

He observed that a person who has to wait in line two or three hours and then gets no coffee has "just cause" for complaint, but added that the merchant should not be subjected to abuse.

Capacity Crowd of 8,000 Expected for Massillon Game

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The few faithful who made the long trip to Springfield last Friday night—at wartime speed of 35 miles an hour—are telling the surprised fans back home that Mansfield high will not be disgraced by Massillon next Friday if the Tygers fight as they fought at Springfield.

"Regardless of the score, you'll be proud of those Tygers if they show the same fighting spirit against Massillon," is the tale the trip takers tell.

And how did they fight? The Springfield News in its account of the game, gives you some idea:

"What Mansfield lacked in power and finesse was more than made up in the will to win and the will to fight for victory," says the Springfield paper.

"It was this fact, more than anything else, which kept the Wildcats from racking up their third straight triumph.

"Once the underdog Mansfield club moved into the lead, it fought desperately to prevent Springfield from scoring. It might be said Mansfield was playing over its head. Be that as it may, the Tygers had the spark necessary to prevent any Springfield tallies"

The Springfield paper gives a lot of credit to the inspired play to Acting Captain Jim Burrage, who recovered the Springfield fumble that led to the Mansfield touchdown, and who kept the Tygers' scoring march going with two brilliant end-around sweeps. "Burrage," says the paper, "was a fly in the ointment all night long."

Mansfield will have one advantage Friday night. Massillon's Tigers are looking on this game as a breather. Mansfield's Tygers know they'll be lucky to catch their breath.

Coach Elwood Kammer of Massillon is quoted in the Canton Repository as saying that Steubenville was the best team the Tigers have faced.

Then the Repository goes on to say that only one major obstacle remains in Massillon's championship path — Canton McKinley. And that "the Tigers encounter Mansfield, Warren, Toledo Waite and Erie East on successive week-ends. The first two loom as breathers, while Waite and East aren't especially strong this season."

They'll always believe down in Steubenville, that if their star halfback, Johnny Stojack, hadn't been injured in the second quarter, the Stubbies would have beaten Massillon last Friday night.

"It was Stojack's show in the first half," says the Steubenville Herald-Star. "He electrified the huge crowd with his amazing play. It was Stojack on offense, and it was Stojack on defense.

"Battered and beaten Stojack had to retire from the game soon after he had scored Steubenville's touchdown in the second quarter on a fake reverse, dashing 21 yards for the score giving Steubenville a 7-6 lead at the half. And he set up his touchdown by recovering a Massillon fumble on the 24-yard stripe."

The Herald-Star sums up the Massillon offense with: "Fullback Chuck Holt was the big gun in Massillon's thunderous 21-point attack in the third quarter. A hard-hitting back with terrific power, Holt paved the way to victory."

Don Hutson Nears Scoring Record

CHICAGO — (AP) — Pass-snaring Don Hutson Green Bay Packers end, already is approaching his record scoring marks of last year —and he still has seven games left to play

He tops the National football league point producers again this week with seven touchdown passes, plus the place-kicking of 14 extra points, for a total output of 56 points in four games.

Last year he scored 95 points, making a total of 12 touchdowns, 10 of which were from catching passes. The point total, touchdown total and touchdown by pass-catching total all were league records, computed through 11 contests.

Second leading scorer this season is the Chicago Bears' Gary Famighetti with 36 points.

Massillon Moves to 8th Title

Fredericktown Star Scores 44 Points.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Fireworks aplenty exploded over Ohio's high school gridirons last weekend — 100-yard touchdown runs, scintillating scoring sprees, and the extension and breaking of long winning streaks featuring the program.

Bob Lucas, Paulding's junior Negro fullback, made a one-man show of the 38 to 12 triumph over Coldwater, scoring 37 points to hoist his five-game total to 139—an edge of 29 over his nearest competitor in the individual scrap. Lucas was held scoreless in the opening game against Defiance, but has run wild since.

Ollie Cline of Fredericktown was the heavy counter, however. He plowed for seven touchdowns and booted two extra points for a 44 total as he and his mates surged over Mt. Gilead 79 to 6. That splurge moved Cline up to 110 for four games, 13 points ahead of Port Clinton's "Chuck" Gill, who has 97 for five tilts.

On the team front Massillon's Tigers moved on toward their eighth straight state title claim by coming from behind in the final half to beat a surprisingly good Steubenville team by 33-13. For the first time since 1937, when Massillon lost to New Castle, Pa., (its only loss since 1934, by the way) the Tigers were behind at the half, the Stubbers holding a 7-6 edge.

Johnny Stojack, Steubenville's star ball-toter, was injured during the contest—and Massillon went on to notch its 48th without defeat, as a crowd of 18,400 looked on

Louisville, winner of 16 in a row, really lost one when it finally decided to end the streak, for Boardman triumphed by 58 to 0. Stow, winner of 12 straight, dropped out by bowing to Norton, 7 to 0

Powhatan and Xenia O S & S. O Home ran their streaks to 23, the former defeating Adena 31 to 0 and the Cadets smothering Osborn 39 to 0.

The clean records of Marietta and Amsterdam also were wrecked after each had copped four straight this year. Marietta lost a 26-6 decision to Newark while Amsterdam skidded by 12-7 before Irondale.

These teams moved along to their fifth win of the year: Newark, East Liverpool, Miamisburg, Dayton Oakwood, Versailles, Medina, Greentown, Columbus North, Bexley, Defiance, Lorain, Port Clinton, Dover and Boardman, while Hamilton's Big Blue and Clearview made it four straight.

Boasting unblemished goal lines for the season are Medina, Lorain, Lakewood and Clearview, while Dayton Oakwood is the top scoring club with 227 to 6 for the foe in five contests

This week's No 1 contest takes place Friday night at Lorain as the unbeaten-untied-unscored on Steelmen battle unbeaten-untied-unscored on Lakewood in a game that probably will decide the Lake Erie loop title The Steelmen are rated a better club than the one which went undefeated two years ago, while Lakewood rolled over Cleveland West 33 to 0, for its 18th straight victory.

Other streaks extended included Tiltonville (20) defeated Shadyside 7-0, Cleveland Lincoln (15) defeated Parma 26-6; and Fredericktown (12) defeated Mt. Gilead 79-6 Toledo Libbey, with 14 in a row, had an open date.

The week's longest run was chalked up by Substitute End Bill Elwood of Dover's classy aggregation, who intercepted a pass on his own goal line and raced 100 yards to help smack down Chillicothe 38 to 0 Bob Klise of Hilliard romped 96 yards with an intercepted aerial in the 33-0 win over Gahanna Lincoln Canton McKinley sent two backs on long touchdown runs Tony Dominick going 51 and 66 yards, and Jack Crider 55 and 75

Halfback Harold Jenkins, touted as the finest backfield man in Marion Harding's history, continued his brilliant play with a 63-yard touchdown jaunt off tackle to beat Ashland 14-13. Two long touchdown runs—88 yards by Wilmington's Charley Hamilton, and 73 yards by Ira Blackwell of Columbus West—were nullified by penalties.

The week's biggest oddity was contributed by Fredericktown and Mt Gilead Bob Tenant of Mt. Gilead took the second half kickoff 65 yards for a touchdown. Then Mount kicked off, and Ollie Cline raced 76 yards to score for Fredericktown. Ollie also booted the extra point, just 34 seconds being required for the 13 points.

Back of Lucas, Cline and Gill in the individual scoring list are: Jack Bickel, Newark, 89, Johnny Sauer, Dayton Oakwood (scored five touchdowns Friday), 82; Harvey Dillon, Amsterdam, 73, Dave Barbosa, Greentown, and Dean Sensanbauger, Uhrichsville, 71; John Stojack, Steubenville, 66; Regis Leonard, Tiltonsville, 62; Leo Pawlak, Lorain, 60, Bill Cantrell, Gallipolis, 52, Martin Gibbs, Ironton, and Joe Bartos, Lorain, 50; Joe Dawson, East Liverpool, 49; Chuck Holt, Massillon, 47; John Tilletski, Canton St John, 45, and Jack Crider, Canton McKinley, 44.

Famous Massillon Band Marches At Stadium Friday

Here's the famous Massillon high school band of 92 pieces, plus drum major and six high-prancing majorettes, who will be seen at Stadium field Friday night between halves of the Massfield-Massillon football game. Time between halves has been extended to half an hour so the band can put on its usual outstanding exhibition.

Bowman Reaches Tourney Finals

Bowman romped over Newman 32 to 6 yesterday in the grade school elimination touch football tournament to go into the championship finals against Binkerhoff as a preliminary to the Mansfield-Portsmouth game a week from Friday.

Reynolds scored three touchdowns and Carver two for Bowman, and Baker tallied for Newman.

* * *

Hedges went into the finals of the consolation flight with a 13-0 win over Western, and will meet the winner of the West Fifth-Bushnell game.

Tallman and Ferguson scored the touchdowns on passes from Cline.

Buckeyes Keep Top Position

Rate First In Nation For Second Week In Row.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ohio State, with a record of four straight victories this season, remains the choice of the football experts as the country's No. 1 team in the second of the Associated Press's weekly polls

Fifty-eight of the 119 sports writers gave the Buckeyes, who blanked Purdue while getting 26 points for themselves in their latest outing, first place on their ballots but 38 others decided the honor belonged to Georgia, a 40 to 0 winner over Tauten last Saturday.

The Dixie Bulldogs, second a week ago, held onto the runnerup position, 1,030 votes to 973, but Alabama, which stopped Tennessee, 8 to 0. exchanged places with Michigan and occupied third place while the Wolverines skidded to fourth despite their 34 to 16 win over Northwestern.

That was the only change among the first seven of a week ago with Illinois, Georgia Tech and Wisconsin keeping the fifth, sixth and seventh rings.

The remaining three places in the top 10, however, went to newcomers with Notre Dame climbing from twenty-second to eighth on the strength of the 28 to 0 shellacking administered the Iowa Pre-Flight Cadets, Santa Clara moving up from a tie for fifteenth to ninth by beating California, and Boston College nudging up from eleventh to tenth following the Eagles' 7 to 6 win over the North Carolina Pre-Flights.

Pennsylvania, tied by Princeton; Colgate, drubbed by Duke; and Washington State, loser to Southern California, were eighth, ninth and tenth a week ago.

Additional Seats for Cinder Track Arranged

Tygers Come Out of Springfield Game In Good Physical Condition

PREPARATIONS are being made today to handle a capacity crowd of 8,000 fans at the Mansfield-Massillon high school football game Friday night at Stadium field.

"If we had the seating capacity we could sell 10,000 or more tickets for this game," Ticket Director George Sherman declared. "We've sent 1,500 tickets to Massillon, which is just half the number Massillon wanted."

Sherman yesterday distributed 1,000 tickets for seats on park benches to be placed on the cinder track along the sides of the gridiron. These tickets have been placed on sale at the usual outlets for high school gridiron ducats —Tawse Pharmacy, Brown's drug store, Mayer drug store, Mansfield Athletic Supply, Yuncker's Sports, and at the high school.

"Because of the late date, tickets will not be numbered for the cinder track seats," Sherman said, "it will be a case of first come, first served for holders of these tickets, but there will be no more tickets sold than there are seats available."

* * *

Sherman reported a marked rush for the few remaining seats in the stands after Mansfield's victory over Springfield last Friday night.

"Before that," he said, "many ticket buyers were frank in saying they were going to see the Massillon band"

The Massillon band is coming to the game, 92-pieces strong, and the between-halves interval will be lengthened to half an hour to allow the famous Tiger musicians time to put on their show. They are famous for one of the most colorful exhibitions of any school band in the country, and that includes colleges. The Mansfield band also is reported working on some new specialties for this game.

Mansfield Tygers came out of the Springfield game in good physical condition, Coach Paul Snyder reported last night after a final checkup

"We're going to do a lot of hard work this week," Snyder promised, "but it will be chiefly on defense. I doubt if we will have the ball often enough or long enough to make it worth while to spend much practice on offense this week."

But the Tygers will get some work on offense this week if for no other reason than to attempt to prolong those times when they do have the ball. "We'll just be trying to keep the score down to respectable figures," Snyder said.

In addition to the added cinder track seats, bleachers used for basketball games in the Tyger gym will be placed at the south end of the field for school children, and there will be standing room at both ends of the field.

Consider Early Hunting Date

Gas Rationing Moves Commission Action.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Because gasoline rationing is to be instituted Nov. 22 in Ohio, the state conservation commission will consider moving up the hunting season when it meets tomorrow at Jackson.

Some commissioners expressed themselves as convinced that an earlier season would do much to aid the hunter in getting in a few days' sport before the gas pumps go practically dry. Currently the season is scheduled to open Nov. 20, which would leave nimrods just two days to roam over the state in search of rabbits and birds.

Last year the season opened five days earlier, on Nov. 15. A similar season this year would give the hunter a full week of sport before gas rationing goes into effect.

Against this, however, is the same argument which resulted in the later date this year—the complaint of farmers that hunters were tramping down the soybean crops before they could be harvested. However, it was felt that the season would be moved up as it was in Kentucky.

THEATERS

Skating Spectacle.

Filled with elaborate ice skating built around Sonja Henie, the current Ohio production, "Iceland," tells the story of what happened to an American marine who couldn't say "no" to a daughter of the snow country. John Payne plays the marine and Sonja Henie the role of the girl who faked a marriage in order to escape going to the altar with a youth of her family's choice. Gay dancing and skating scenes, Sammy Kaye's orchestra and Jack Oakie's comedy are among the attributes of the film. "A Letter From Bataan," is also on the bill.

Band Romance.

Glenn Miller's orchestra lifts "Orchestra Wives," the Madison headliner, out of the usual run of musical films since it provides practically the entire background for the production. George Montgomery and Ann Rutherford have the romantic leads as the "trumpet" of a name band and a romantic swing fan who decide to get married on their second meeting. One night stands afterwards coupled with a singing siren and gossip almost heads the marriage for the rocks. Lynn Bari as the songbird, Cesar Romero, Carole Landis, Mary Beth Hughes and the Nicholas Brothers, sensational dancers, are in the cast. 'Half Way to Shanghai," is the second picture.

Army Musical.

Adventures of a group of entertainers in one of Uncle Sam's army cantonments with the majority of the players appearing as themselves are depicted in "Private Buckaroo," the Ritz attraction with Harry James and his orchestra and the Andrews Sisters. Dick Foran, Ernest Truex, Jennifer Holt and the Jivin' Jacks and Jills are in the cast. "Jackass Mail," a melodrama of the old west with Wallace Berry and Marjorie Main, is the second attraction with Beery playing the role of an outlaw.

Island Comedy.

"Pardon My Sarong," the Park headliner, takes Abbott and Costello half-way around the globe in a combination chase, treasure hunt and encounter with a tribe of south seas dancing beauties. The two zanies appear as Chicago bus drivers who find themselves on an uncharted island where they get mixed up with natives, an unscrupulous white man out for treasure. Virginia Bruce and Robert Paige furnish the romance. "Prisoner of Japan," with Alan Baxter and Gertrude Michael is the co-feature.

Capacity Crowd of 8,000 Expected for Massillon Game

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The few faithful who made the long trip to Springfield last Friday night—at wartime speed of 35 miles an hour—are telling the surprised fans back home that Mansfield high will not be disgraced by Massillon next Friday if the Tygers fight as they fought at Springfield.

"Regardless of the score, you'll be proud of those Tygers if they show the same fighting spirit against Massillon," is the tale the trip takers tell.

And how did they fight? The Springfield News in its account of the game, gives you some idea:

"What Mansfield lacked in power and finesse was more than made up in the will to win and the will to fight for victory," says the Springfield paper.

"It was this fact, more than anything else, which kept the Wildcats from racking up their third straight triumph.

"Once the underdog Mansfield club moved into the lead, it fought desperately to prevent Springfield from scoring. It might be said Mansfield was playing over its head. Be that as it may, the Tygers had the spark necessary to prevent any Springfield tallies."

The Springfield paper gives a lot of credit to the inspired play to Acting Captain Jim Burrage, who recovered the Springfield fumble that led to the Mansfield touchdown, and who kept the Tygers' scoring march going with two brilliant end-around sweeps. "Burrage," says the paper, "was a fly in the ointment all night long."

Mansfield will have one advantage Friday night. Massillon's Tigers are looking on this game as a breather. Mansfield's Tygers know they'll be lucky to catch their breath.

Coach Elwood Kammer of Massillon is quoted in the Canton Repository as saying that Steubenville was the best team the Tigers have faced.

Then the Repository goes on to say that only one major obstacle remains in Massillon's championship path — Canton McKinley. And that "the Tigers encounter Mansfield, Warren, Toledo Waite and Erie East on successive week-ends. The first two loom as breathers, while Waite and East aren't especially strong this season."

They'll always believe, down in Steubenville, that if their star halfback, Johnny Stojack hadn't been injured in the second quarter, the Stubbers would have beaten Massillon last Friday night.

"It was Stojack's show in the first half," says the Steubenville Herald-Star. "He electrified the huge crowd with his amazing play. It was Stojack on offense, and it was Stojack on defense.

"Battered and beaten, Stojack had to retire from the game soon after he had scored Steubenville's touchdown in the second quarter on a fake reverse, dashing 24 yards for the score giving Steubenville a 7-6 lead at the half. And he set up his touchdown by recovering a Massillon fumble on the 24-yard stripe."

The Herald-Star sums up the Massillon offense with: "Fullback Chuck Holt was the big gun in Massillon's thunderous 21-point attack in the third quarter. A hard-hitting back with terrific power, Holt paved the way to victory."

Don Hutson Nears Scoring Record

CHICAGO — (AP) — Pass-snaring Don Hutson, Green Bay Packers end, already is approaching his record scoring marks of last year —and he still has seven games left to play.

He tops the National football league point producers again this week with seven touchdown passes, plus the place-kicking of 14 extra points, for a total output of 56 points in four games.

Last year he scored 95 points, making a total of 12 touchdowns, 10 of which were from catching passes. The point total, touchdown total and touchdown by pass-catching total all were league records, computed through 11 contests.

Second leading scorer this season is the Chicago Bears' Gary Famiglietti with 36 points.

Massillon Moves to 8th Title

Fredericktown Star Scores 44 Points.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Fireworks aplenty exploded over Ohio's high school gridirons last weekend — 100-yard touchdown runs, scintillating scoring sprees, and the extension and breaking of long winning streaks featuring the program.

Bob Lucas, Paulding's junior Negro fullback, made a one-man show of the 38 to 12 triumph over Coldwater, scoring 37 points to hoist his five-game total to 139—an edge of 29 over his nearest competitor in the individual scrap. Lucas was held scoreless in the opening game against Defiance, but has run wild since.

Ollie Cline of Fredericktown was the heavy counter, however. He plowed for seven touchdowns and booted two extra points for a 44 total as he and his mates surged over Mt. Gilead 79 to 6. That splurge moved Cline up to 110 for four games, 13 points ahead of Port Clinton's "Chuck" Gill, who has 97 for five tilts.

On the team front Massillon's Tigers moved on toward their eighth straight state title claim by coming from behind in the final half to beat a surprisingly good Steubenville team by 33-13. For the first time since 1937, when Massillon lost to New Castle, Pa., (its only loss since 1934, by the way) the Tigers were behind at the half, the Stubbers holding a 7-6 edge.

Johnny Stojack, Steubenville's star ball-toter, was injured during the contest—and Massillon went on to notch its 48th without defeat, as a crowd of 18,400 looked on.

Louisville, winner of 16 in a row, really lost one when it finally decided to end the streak, for Boardman triumphed by 58 to 0. Stow, winner of 12 straight, dropped out by bowing to Norton, 7 to 0.

Powhatan and Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home ran their streaks to 23, the former defeating Adena 31 to 0 and the Cadets smothering Osborn 39 to 0.

The clean records of Marietta and Amsterdam also were wrecked after each had copped four straight this year. Marietta lost a 26-6 decision to Newark, while Amsterdam skidded by 12-7 before Irondale

These teams moved along to their fifth win of the year: Newark, East Liverpool, Miamisburg, Dayton Oakwood, Versailles, Medina, Greentown, Columbus North, Bexley, Defiance, Lorain, Port Clinton, Dover and Boardman, while Hamilton's Big Blue and Clearview made it four straight.

Boasting unblemished goal lines for the season are Medina, Lorain, Lakewood and Clearview, while Dayton Oakwood is the top scoring club with 227 to 6 for the foe in five contests.

This week's No 1 contest takes place Friday night at Lorain as the unbeaten-untied-unscored on Steelmen battle unbeaten-untied-unscored on Lakewood in a game that probably will decide the Lake Erie loop title. The Steelmen are rated a better club than the one which went undefeated two years ago, while Lakewood rolled over Cleveland West 33 to 0, for its 18th straight victory.

Other streaks extended included: Tiltonville (20) defeated Shadyside 7-0; Cleveland Lincoln (15) defeated Parma 26-6; and Fredericktown (12) defeated Mt Gilead 79-6. Toledo Libbey, with 14 in a row, had an open date.

The week's longest run was chalked up by Substitute End Bill Elwood of Dover's classy aggregation, who intercepted a pass on his own goal line and raced 100 yards to help smack down Chillicothe 38 to 0. Bob Klise of Hilliard romped 96 yards with an intercepted aerial in the 33-0 win over Gahanna Lincoln. Canton McKinley sent two backs on long touchdown runs, Tony Dominick going 51 and 66 yards, and Jack Crider 55 and 75.

Halfback Harold Jenkins, touted as the finest backfield man in Marion Harding's history, continued his brilliant play with a 63-yard touchdown jaunt off tackle to beat Ashland 14-13. Two long touchdown runs—88 yards by Wilmington's Charley Hamilton, and 73 yards by Ira Blackwell of Columbus West—were nullified by penalties.

The week's biggest oddity was contributed by Fredericktown and Mt. Gilead. Bob Tenant of Mt. Gilead took the second half kickoff 65 yards for a touchdown. Then Mount kicked off, and Ollie Cline raced 76 yards to score for Fredericktown. Ollie also booted the extra point, just 34 seconds being required for the 13 points.

Back of Lucas, Cline and Gill in the individual scoring list are: Jack Bickel, Newark, 89, Johnny Sauer, Dayton Oakwood (scored five touchdowns Friday), 82; Harvey Dillon, Amsterdam, 73, Dave Barbosa, Greentown, and Dean Sensanbauger, Uhrichsville, 71; John Stojack, Steubenville, 66; Regis Leonard, Tiltonsville, 62; Leo Pawlak, Lorain, 60, Bill Cantrell, Gallipolis, 52; Martin Gibbs, Ironton, and Joe Bartos, Lorain, 50; Joe Dawson, East Liverpool, 49; Chuck Holt, Massillon, 47; John Tilletski, Canton St. John, 45, and Jack Crider, Canton McKinley, 44.

Famous Massillon Band Marches At Stadium Friday

Here's the famous Massillon high school band of 92 pieces, plus drum major and six high-prancing majorettes, who will be seen at Stadium field Friday night between halves of the Mansfield-Massillon football game. Time between halves has been extended to half an hour so the band can put on its usual outstanding exhibition.

Leads League Second Week

Arlene Peters Rolls High In Westie Loop.

For the second straight week Arlene Peters of the Provident Loan girls softball team led the Westinghouse women's bowling league at Colony alleys last night with a 519 total and high game of 207.

In second place was her softball teammate, Ruth Whiteman, with 458.

Buckeyes Keep Top Position

Rate First In Nation For Second Week In Row.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ohio State, with a record of four straight victories this season, remains the choice of the football experts as the country's No 1 team in the second of the Associated Press's weekly polls.

Fifty-eight of the 119 sports writers gave the Buckeyes, who blanked Purdue while getting 26 points for themselves in their latest outing, first place on their ballots but 38 others decided the honor belonged to Georgia, a 40 to 0 winner over Taulen last Saturday.

The Dixie Bulldogs, second a week ago, held onto the runnerup position, 1,030 votes to 973, but Alabama, which stopped Tennessee, 8 to 0, exchanged places with Michigan and occupied third place while the Wolverines skidded to fourth despite their 34 to 16 win over Northwestern.

That was the only change among the first seven of a week ago with Illinois, Georgia Tech and Wisconsin keeping the fifth, sixth and seventh rings.

The remaining three places in the top 10, however, went to newcomers with Notre Dame climbing from twenty-second to eighth on the strength of the 28 to 0 shellacking administered the Iowa Pre-Flight Cadets; Santa Clara moving up from a tie for fifteenth to ninth by beating California, and Boston College nudging up from eleventh to tenth following the Eagles' 7 to 6 win over the North Carolina Pre-Flights.

Pennsylvania, tied by Princeton; Colgate, drubbed by Duke; and Washington State, loser to Southern California, were eighth, ninth and tenth a week ago.

Johnny Appleseed junior high gridder's meet Madison reserves at Appleseed field this afternoon in a game originally scheduled for tomorrow, but which has been moved up a day.

Additional Seats for Cinder Track Arranged

Tygers Come Out of Springfield Game In Good Physical Condition

PREPARATIONS are being made today to handle a capacity crowd of 8,000 fans at the Mansfield-Massillon high school football game Friday night at Stadium field.

"If we had the seating capacity we could sell 10,000 or more tickets for this game," Ticket Director George Sherman declared. "We've sent 1,500 tickets to Massillon, which is just half the number Massillon wanted."

Sherman yesterday distributed 1,000 tickets for seats on park benches to be placed on the cinder track along the sides of the gridiron. These tickets have been placed on sale at the usual outlets for high school gridiron ducats —Tawse Pharmacy, Brown's drug store, Mayer drug store, Mansfield Athletic Supply, Yuncker's Sports, and at the high school.

"Because of the late date, tickets will not be numbered for the cinder track seats," Sherman said, "it will be a case of first come, first served for holders of these tickets, but there will be no more tickets sold than there are seats available."

* * *

Sherman reported a marked rush for the few remaining seats in the stands after Mansfield's victory over Springfield last Friday night.

"Before that," he said, "many ticket buyers were frank in saying they were going to see the Massillon band."

The Massillon band is coming to the game, 92-pieces strong, and the between-halves interval will be lengthened to half an hour to allow the famous Tiger musicians time to put on their show. They are famous for one of the most colorful exhibitions of any school band in the country, and that includes colleges. The Mansfield band also is reported working on some new specialties for this game.

Mansfield Tygers came out of the Springfield game in good physical condition, Coach Paul Snyder reported last night after a final checkup

"We're going to do a lot of hard work this week," Snyder promised, "but it will be chiefly on defense. I doubt if we will have the ball often enough or long enough to make it worth while to spend much practice on offense this week."

But the Tygers will get some work on offense this week if for no other reason than to attempt to prolong those times when they do have the ball. "We'll just be trying to keep the score down to respectable figures," Snyder said.

In addition to the added cinder track seats, bleachers used for basketball games in the Tyger gym will be placed at the south end of the field for school children, and there will be standing room at both ends of the field.

Consider Early Hunting Date

Gas Rationing Moves Commission Action.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Because gasoline rationing is to be instituted Nov. 22 in Ohio, the state conservation commission will consider moving up the hunting season when it meets tomorrow at Jackson.

Some commissioners expressed themselves as convinced that an earlier season would do much to aid the hunter in getting in a few days' sport before the gas pumps go practically dry. Currently the season is scheduled to open Nov. 20, which would leave nimrods just two days to roam over the state in search of rabbits and birds.

Last year the season opened five days earlier, on Nov. 15. A similar season this year would give the hunter a full week of sport before gas rationing goes into effect.

Against this, however, is the same argument which resulted in the later date this year—the complaint of farmers that hunters were tramping down the soybean crops before they could be harvested. However, it was felt that the season would be moved up as it was in Kentucky.

THEATERS

Skating Spectacle.

Filled with elaborate ice skating built around Sonja Henie, the current Ohio production, "Iceland," tells the story of what happened to an American marine who couldn't say "no" to a daughter of the snow country. John Payne plays the marine and Sonja Henie the role of the girl who faked a marriage in order to escape going to the altar with a youth of her family's choice. Gay dancing and skating scenes, Sammy Kaye's orchestra and Jack Oakie's comedy are among the attributes of the film. "A Letter From Bataan," is also on the bill

Band Romance.

Glenn Miller's orchestra lifts "Orchestra Wives," the Madison headliner, out of the usual run of musical films since it provides practically the entire background for the production. George Montgomery and Ann Rutherford have the romantic leads as the "trumpet" of a name band and a romantic swing fan who decide to get married on their second meeting. One night stands afterwards coupled with a singing siren and gossip almost heads the marriage for the rocks. Lynn Bari as the songbird, Cesar Romero, Carole Landis, Mary Beth Hughes and the Nicholas Brothers, sensational dancers, are in the cast. 'Half Way to Shanghai," is the second picture.

Army Musical.

Adventures of a group of entertainers in one of Uncle Sam's army cantonments with the majority of the players appearing as themselves are depicted in "Private Buckaroo," the Ritz attraction with Harry James and his orchestra and the Andrews Sisters. Dick Foran, Ernest Truex, Jennifer Holt and the Jivin' Jacks and Jills are in the cast. "Jackass Mail," a melodrama of the old west with Wallace Berry and Marjorie Main, is the second attraction with Beery playing the role of an outlaw.

Island Comedy.

"Pardon My Sarong," the Park headliner, takes Abbott and Costello half-way around the globe in a combination chase, treasure hunt and encounter with a tribe of south seas dancing beauties. The two zanies appear as Chicago bus drivers who find themselves on an uncharted island where they get mixed up with natives, an unscrupulous white man out for treasure. Virginia Bruce and Robert Paige furnish the romance "Prisoner of Japan," with Alan Baxter and Gertrude Michael is the co-feature.

3—In Memoriam

IN MEMORIAM of Earl Sweval, who died October 20, 1940

An earthly one from us is gone.
A voice we love is still
A place is empty in our house
That never will be filled.
God, in his wisdom can recall
The love that he has given
And, tho the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in heaven
Mother and Father,
Brothers and Sisters. (S-k)

Lack of Tank Cars Delays Improvement in Eastern Oil Situation.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Most leaders edged up fractionally in today's early stock market proceedings.

Quoted higher at a quiet opening were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sears, Roebuck, Westinghouse, American Can and Montgomery Ward.

Attracting holders of oil shares were reports the fuel oil situation on the Atlantic coast was not showing the expected improvement because of the inadequacy of tank cars.

As disclosed by official figures tank car shipments to the east coast declined to 776,410 barrels daily for the week ended Oct. 10, the lowest for any similar period since July 18. The decline was the third in succession from the peak of 856,710 barrels established in the week of Sept. 19.

REGISTRATION SET-UP MAPPED

Fuel Oil Dealers to Enroll Oct. 28; Consumers to Report Oct. 29.

Richland county's rationing board went ahead today with preparations for the registration of approximately 500 consumers of fuel oil in Mansfield and the remainder of the county although registration for both dealers and consumers had been postponed for one week due to the delay in receiving registration supplies.

Registration for an estimated 300 dealers in the county will be held Oct. 28-29, Nelson Neff, chairman of the county rationing board, said today, while consumer registration will start Thursday, Oct. 29. This registration does not apply to gasoline.

All Mansfield consumers and dealers in the county will register at the local office of the rationing board, 43 North Mulberry street, while consumers outside of Mansfield and exclusive of Shelby, will register at school buildings in their own districts. Shelby will set up its own procedure, Neff said.

Meanwhile instructions to all registrars in the county will be given at a meeting Wednesday, Oct. 21, at 8:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce rooms by Paul Webb, field officer for OPA, out of the Cleveland office. Nelson Neff will preside at the meeting.

County school teachers and volunteers will handle registration in the county areas, Oct. 29, 30 and 31, from 4 p. m. to 8 p. m., while the local office will be open for consumer registration daily from Oct. 29 to Oct. 31 and again from Nov. 2 through Nov. 6. Local registration will be handled alphabetically the same as it was during the sugar registration. This schedule will be announced later.

BUY U. S. WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

BUT THEY COULDN'T TOUCH OUR RAIL TRANSPORT!

Stealing rubber and sinking tankers can't lick the U.S.A.! Railroads fill the breach!

Yes, sir! 600,000 barrels of oil to Eastern States every day! That's 600,000 more barrels daily than the Railroads promised to deliver—and better than 50 times the oil rail shipments of a year ago. And how do you like that, Adolf?

Yes, and Railroads are now shipping coal to New England; Maine potatoes to the South; Pacific Coast lumber Eastward; Florida fruits up North...you name it, the Railroads are moving it!

That's not all! Much of the material which formerly moved over highways before the rubber crisis is now transported by rail. That's for your information, Tojo!

Of course, the Railroads' big job—the fast, safe, efficient handling of troop movements, vital war materials and essential civilian travel—still goes on; day in, day out.

You Axis gangsters failed to cripple America's Lifelines when you couldn't touch the Railroads. They're America's Transportation Insurance Policy.

SCRAP METAL DRIVE EASES STEEL SUPPLY

Near Capacity Production Assured, Some Winter Reserves Laid Up.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Price trends were indecisive and narrow in today's early stock market dealings.

Modest gains were posted at the opening by Bethlehem Steel, American Can, Sears Roebuck and Texas Co., while Anaconda, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber and great northern sold at slightly lower levels.

Market analysts noted in the weekly summary of the magazine "Steel" the comment that steel mills scrap supplies were considerably more comfortable as a result of the metal salvage campaign.

"Most steelmakers," said the review, now have sufficient scrap for as near capacity production as furnace conditions will allow and in some cases reserves are being laid down for winter use."

CIVILIAN PILOT TRAINING PAYS BIG DIVIDEND

Program Produces Several Hundred Airmen at Georgia University.

(By International News Service)

ATHENS, Ga.—Born in an atmosphere of peacetime pleasure flying four years ago, the civilian pilot training program of the University of Georgia has contributed a mighty share to the first line pilots of the American army, the navy and the ferry command.

Since inception of the program in 1939, the CPT program administered by the university has produced several hundred airmen who today are instructing other young fledglings, or fighting and dying from U. S.-held airfields the world over.

On the African continent, over Australia, and from countless fighter and bomber stations in the British Isles American planes are being flown against the Nazis and Japs by boys, many of whom first climbed into a cockpit in Athens merely because they liked to fly.

Typical Example

Take Gerald Hardeman of Athens, for example. "Jerry" as they knew him on the campus, started training under civilian pilot instructors early in 1940, and was graduated later that same year with no thought of doing anything other than piloting a lumbering commercial liner over carefully marked, safe courses. But today, Hardeman sits in the nose of a gigantic Catalina naval patrol plane, searching out the scattered Japanese fleet in the wide reaches of the Pacific.

It was Hardeman who, as co-pilot, first sighted the would-be invasion fleet of the Japs headed for Midway Island, and it was the warning from Hardeman's plane which enabled the U. S. forces to "get the jump" on the Japs and administer the smashing defeat which the Nipponese suffered off Midway.

Then there is Tommy Watt, another Athens boy who graduated from the university school with Hardeman in 1940. Watt, too, is today flying one of Uncle Sam's "big babies." He's pilot of a giant U. S. army bomber, and when last heard from was somewhere in Australia. Watt received commendation of his superiors when he stuck with a badly damaged flying fortress after ordering his crew to bail out, and finally did what airmen described as a "miroculous job" of landing the ship despite a crippled landing gear.

REACH AUSTRALIA AFTER 159 DAYS ON FOOT, IN SMALL BOAT

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (AP) — Capt. William Lloyd Osborne of Los Angeles, and First Lieut. Damon Gause of Winder, Ga., have arrived safely in Australia after a dramatic escape from the Philippines and a 159-day journey by foot and small boat.

"We arrived here not by any expert navigation but by the grace of God," declared the bronzed Osborne.

During their long southward trip, which ended on Oct. 11, the officers hid by day and traveled by night, several times escaping by a narrow margin encounters with Japanese troops and ships.

They survived a machine-gunning by a Japanese plane almost within sight of Australia and once sailed right by two Japanese cruisers which ignored them. Despite the vicissitudes they endured, both men put on weight.

The final lap of the voyage was made in a 22-foot native-built motorboat, in which the adventurers set out on Aug. 15. They completed their 1,500-mile journey by making a landfall within 15 miles of the point they had set as their goal.

The log which they kept during the trip ended with this entry:

"We close this log with much relief and rejoicing."

GET AWARD FOR RAID ON JAPS

Two Ohioans Cited Following Attack on Enemy Base and Crash Landing.

(By Associated Press)

GEN MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — Two Ohioans, members of a B-25 bomber crew that made a crash landing while returning from a successful raid on the Japanese seaplane base in the DeBoyne island and then waited a month for rescue, were awarded silver stars today.

They were 2nd Lieut. Alfred A. Heyman of Youngstown and Sergt. Francis H. Pryor of Bellefontaine.

The DeBoyne island raids for which Heyman, Pryor and five other members of the crew were cited for gallantry took place on May 5. During the action, the citation said, the fliers shot down one Japanese seaplane, destroyed several others in the water and damaged three more.

"In the action, however," the communique added, "the enemy shot the liferaft out of the hatch, entangling it in the tail and causing severe damage, necessitating a crash landing in New Guinea. Prior to the landing one of the sergeants climbed out of the rear window while the others held him by his legs in an unsuccessful attempt to free the raft.

"Although the plane was almost uncontrollable it was landed without damage to the crew. The crew spent a month on the island awaiting rescue, during which time the crews were salvaged and the plane destroyed."

GETS CHANCE

Mansfielder, Who Ran Amok With Gun, Wins Leniency.

James S. Mulligan, 233 North Mulberry street, will escape $70 of a penalty of $75 and costs pending his good behavior, under an entry today by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

Mulligan was charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct following his arrest at 2 a. m. yesterday. Mrs. Mulligan told police her life probably was spared when a shotgun in the hands of her husband missed fire when he ran amok and threatened her with the weapon.

Mulligan was taken into custody by Patrolmen John Grohol, Carl Beard, William Colby and Earl Korn after central station had received a report of a gunman running rampant at the North Mulberry street address.

WARNS OF HEAVIER JAP BLOW

Latest Pictures From Guadalcanal, Where U. S. Still Holds

Solomon Battle Crisis Ahead of Us, Says Knox

Secretary Cautions That Japs Haven't Yet Thrown Full Strength Into Fight; Navy Bombards Enemy Ammunition Dumps, Lines.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today that he believed that the Japanese "by no means as yet" used their maximum force in the battle of the Solomons.

"It is still a good stiff, hard fight," he told a press conference when asked about the Solomons campaign.

"In my judgment," he said, "the Japanese have by no means as yet exercised their maximum force."

He had no information to add to the most recent navy communique, which told last night of American warships suddenly reappearing in the Solomons.

Knox said that the communiques were being issued as rapidly as information was received by the navy department.

An indication that land-based airplanes may begin to play a much greater part in naval activity was given by the secretary.

Asked if he would comment upon the number of such planes, he said that information could not be disclosed but "the number of land-based planes of the navy is steadily increasing."

He described an Office of War Information report upon effectiveness and efficiency of American warplanes as "extremely well done."

First evidence that the United States soldiers, sailors and marines awaiting a full scale assault for then embattled island airbase were being supported by heavy naval units came last night in a navy announcement of an effective sea bombardment of enemy positions and ammunition dumps on northwestern Guadalcanal.

Throughout Oct 17 American planes blasted at the enemy's island foothold and for three days, beginning Oct. 16 Allied bombers repeatedly pounded the strong Japanese force of warships, transports and cargo vessels in the Shortland island area

In two days, Japanese losses in the Solomons were raised to 340 destroyed planes, as eight enemy bombers and 11 Zero fighters of a 40-plane force were shot down in an attempt to bomb the American-held airfield of Guadalcanal.

In a raid on the enemy base of Santa Isabel island, 115 miles north of Guadalcanal, army flying fortress bombers and navy-marine fighters strafed and burned 12 Japanese seaplanes caught on the water and shot down a large Japanese flying boat and a twin-engined enemy bomber.

Retaliating for the American warship bombardment, which set off ammunition stores, Japanese ships shelled U. S installations on the northern coast of Guadalcanal.

No recent Japanese attempt to reinforce their troops has been observed since Oct. 15.

The Allied aerial offensive from the Australian base experienced a comparative lull yesterday after

Shake-Up of War Agencies Demanded

HOUSE REPORT HITS CONFUSION

Charges War Can Be Lost In Washington, Calls For Simplified Control.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A complete reshuffling of top war agencies under a new super control board was recommended today in a congressional report which said:

"Those officials who have charge of the war production program including the mobilization of manpower have not yet grasped the meaning of modern war."

The report, bristling with criticism of the present set-up, was issued by the special house committee on national defense migration.

It urged subordination of the war production board, the selective service administration, the war manpower commission and office of price administration to a new super agency to be known as the office of war mobilization.

Asserting "our materials distribution system is breaking down and that 'hoarding of raw materials has become a nationwide phenomenon," the committee declared:

"This war can be lost in Washington . . . despite numerous realignments, ten months after Pearl Harbor, business-as-usual considerations still per-

TAX BILL READY

Revised Measure Due to Go To Roosevelt Today.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Congress was ready to submit formally to the American people today the biggest tax bill in history as the first great installment of the war.

The legislation adds an estimated $8,000,000,000 in new revenues, bringing to approximately $25,000,000,000 the total to be collected in federal taxes for 1943.

Both senate and house were expected to give speedy approval to the compromise draft adopted Saturday by a joint conference committee, thus routing it to President Roosevelt's desk in time for the new excise taxes to become applicable on Nov. 1. This would put $50,000,000 in the treasury next month over and beyond the excise levies now in force.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft dropped in at the State house for a visit with Gov. John W. Bricker today and told reporters, in passing, that he was opposed to drafting 18-year-olds into the army.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — An influx of protest mail spurred a movement among senators today to surround the proposed military draft of 18 and 19 year old men with protective restrictions for their schooling, training and off-duty activities.

Letters from mothers protesting against the induction of their youthful sons and complaining about interruptions in their studies were reported piling up on legislators' desks, as well as petitions from organizations urging that

Puts Bromfield's Name On Check, Does A Bad Job

A 16-year-old Monroe township boy who made the mistake of trying to copy Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield's signature on a $6 forged check was under a suspended sentence to the Boys Industrial school at Lancaster today.

The forgery was detected by a North Main street clothing dealer who discovered that Bromfield's name was spelled incorrectly and felt pretty certain that a man of the Richland county author's fame wouldn't make an error like that.

The first name of the forged signature was almost indistinguishable and the last name was spelled "Bronfield." The check was payable to "Earl Au" and was marked "for Sarl Au."

The youth admitted the forgery in county juvenile court and was placed under suspended sentence by Judge Stuart H. Cramer. Juvenile authorities were trying to find a farm job for the boy today.

Work on the new hard-surfaced runway at the Mansfield airport was stalled again today when the crusher supplying stone and slag for the runway broke down at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company plant The crusher is owned by R. O. Darling and Son, Mansfield contractors.

County Engineer Howard Sword said operations on the project would be halted until the crusher is put in order again. Obtaining the necessary repair parts will be difficult because of war priorities, he predicted.

The county engineer estimated that about 76 per cent of the work exclusive of the "black-top" surface has been completed The excavating is nearly done and much of the slag base has been rolled into the excavation.

HOLDING: Russians Cling To Lines In Face Of Dive-Bombing

(By Associated Press)

German dive bombers and fighters resumed a full-scale assault on Stalingrad today after cold rains had driven them from the skies in a short foretaste of winter, but Red army headquarters declared the Russians still held their lines unbroken for the past 36 hours

As the storm subsided, the German Transocean news agency asserted that only a few square kilometers of Stalingrad was in Soviet hands.

German military quarters, however, emphasized "the tenacity of Soviet resistance."

Soviet reports said troops reinforcements continued to reach defenders of the ruined Volga metropolis and that German long-range guns were shelling the river in an attempt to interrupt the crossings.

Despite the temporary relief afforded by autumnal storms, which forced the gigantic battle back to the World war tactics of artillery barrage and infantry assault, the Red armies were under savage attack by a tank-led German shock troops in a northern factory district

It was the 57th day of siege.

Behind the battlefront, a Reuters (British news agency), dispatch from the Italian frontier reported that an Italian Alpini regiment had mutinied at Goriza, in northern Italy, when it was ordered to the Russian war zone.

Reuters said that the ringleaders were shot by Fascist military police and that the troops were embarked forcibly without arms.

Patriots were also reported creating trouble for the Axis in Serbia and Yugoslavia.

ADVICE: Admiral Gets Down To Earth On How To Win War

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Admiral Ernest J. King, Ohioan and commander in chief of the United States fleet and chief of naval operations, said last night that this country was fighting a two-ocean war with a one-ocean navy, and "we've got to hold on until we gain some strength"

It was because of that fact he told the Ohio Society of New York, that the United States could not take the offensive in the Pacific until last August, when Tulagi island in the Solomons was seized.

"The enemy didn't like that He is resenting it and he is afraid of what it means The result of his resentment you're reading in your headlines, and don't stop at the headlines. Read the text."

He said the Japanese had the advantage because they have been making war and have intended to do so for a long time. Admiral King did not predict how the battle in the Solomons would come out, but he did say:

"Wherever we have met them on equal terms we've given them better than they have sent."

Admiral King said there are presently 750,000 men in the navy. A year from now, there will be 1,500,000

"It takes a long time to build the ships of the navy, and the two-ocean navy is not yet in service," he said. "In a year, it will be pretty well along on its way.

"This is going to be a long war, . . . There is no cheap way to win this war except to go in there and slug. There will be no miracles; no inventor is going to come along with a machine to knock the Japs out of their planes.

"Wars are won by killing other men and in no other way. You've

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

A fascinating phenomenon of American life—the national beauty contest—has been called off for the duration, and Broadway will miss it somewhat because it provides the Big Street with legends and laughs and heartthrob tales about beauties who were more beautiful than most. This year's crop is the last we will see for quite a few seasons; this is the last chance the scribes and the midnight phrase-slingers will have to scan the dewy-eyed maidens, use the word pulchritude, and wonder the annual wonder, "Where do they go from here?"

Kilgallen

There's no answering that, because you can't look into the future, and a peek into the past provides no clue. Girls who held the same title and the same short moment of glory this year, last year and the last before that, never seem to share the same fate. They start out alike—the train to Atlantic City, the tiny bathing suit, the wonderful moment when the judges nod, the glittering new wardrobe provided by the local Chamber of Commerce, the new thrill of seeing their pictures in all the papers. Then destiny steps in, and every girl's story becomes her own and becomes different from those that came before and those that will come after.

* * *

Just follow the histories of a handful of contest winners from one town, and you'll see what I mean.

Take the beauties from the vivid city of the Mardi Gras, New Orleans.

Dancing in the floor show at Leon and Eddie's these nights there is a lovely young girl with stars in her eyes and stardom on her mind. Her hair is long and silken and the color of sable; her eyes are more nearly gold than brown. Her name is Edna Joyce. She is "Miss New Orleans 1942," and she got her dancing job by talent, not the title, which is a good beginning.

Several nights ago "Miss New Orleans 1931" came into that same swing street cafe and stole the show from the present incumbent—not because she'd planned it, but because she is now Dorothy Lamour, famous for her chassis, her sarong and her salary.

Dottie had her ups and downs after that sunny day down south when the judges proclaimed her the most beautiful. There were months of running a department store elevator, demonstrating reducing machines in a department store window, singing with bands one one-night stands, never anywhere near the big time. Then fame. That's the story of another Miss New Orleans.

And do you happen to know the story of the girl who was "Miss New Orleans 1940?" Her name is Pauline Powell, and hers is a heartening tale of obstacles hurdled. In childhood she fell a victim to infantile paralysis, but by swimming and dancing and the perseverance that comes with high courage she conquered the disease. Those who saw her wearing the gold crown say she was one of the loveliest girls who ever walked in Summer sunshine.

What is she doing today? She is working in a New Orleans defense plant, helping make 25-millimeter shells, and she would tell you she has never felt happier, more useful, more contented.

Only one "Miss New Orleans" ever became "Miss America" and then "Miss Universe." And strangely enough she was the only one whose bright beauty and bright career were ended by a tragedy that still brings tears to the eyes of those who knew her. That was Dorothy Dell, "Miss New Orleans 1930," who had flaxen hair and skin that was pink and white.

She came to New York and Florenz Ziegfeld, enchanted by her loveliness, featured her in his last Ziegfeld Follies. She was a success singing a saucy little song, but success didn't bring her happiness.

She floundered about for several years in something very close to poverty, before Hollywood suddenly became aware of her, Paramount signed her, proclaimed her "a sensational combination of Carole Lombard and Mae West," and she was going places—fast. One night, driving in a car with a friend in Hollywood, she was going places fast, too. The car smashed into a bridge And that was how death came to the girl who has been called officially the most beautiful girl in the world.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

(One of a series by Hollywood Columnist Robbin Coons, who is touring the U. S. A.)

NEW YORK — The Hollywood sound stages have missed John Ford lately but the director still has new work on the screen. It's work, too, that's right out of the "pure Ford" catalogue—the short "Battle of Midway."

Coons

This is an official release of the U. S. Navy, and because there are no screen credits of any kind there is no mention of John Ford. But you know he was there, and you know the Ford trademarks. If this isn't a John Ford production then I've never seen a movie.

Ford was at Midway as a lieutenant commander in the Navy. He passed through Hollywood with his films after the battle, but he kept a tight lip over his experiences. Others told of the bullets, bombs, and flying debris which narrowly missed him and his camera crew. But that tale is on the screen now, for some of the scenes indicate a camera that must have danced and reeled amid the fury around it

It's interesting, if you've followed Ford's direction in pre-war features ("The Grapes of Wrath," "The Informer," et als) to note how the Ford touches pervade even this factional record of a great sea-air victory—a picture in which the director had no control over cast or settings and no script other than the momentous history unfolding before his camera's eye.

Ford has always favored rugged yarns with virile heroes, and here he was working in his element. In this instance he didn't need any "establishing" sequence to prove that his boys had the stuff and could lick the daylights out of the villains in the end. All he had to do, and did, was show the lads, grinning as they climbed in and out of planes, doing a job.

You'll note that the picture, in color, pauses for atmosphere shots at sea and sky. That's Ford, too—the sea always has held a poetic fascination for him, in display in such pieces as "The Long Voyage Home" and Hurricane."

He would deny it, but brusque, hearty John Ford is as sentimental as an Irish grandma—and there's sentiment in "The Battle of Midway" apart from the glow of patriotic fire. Part of the narration is by a motherly voice which comments on the various boys going into battle. "Why, that's my neighbor's boy Johnny," etc There's a message in all this, obviously, a message that this war hits close to everybody's home. That would be Ford's way of putting it across—with sentiment.

DONAHEY, TAFT GET INTO OHIO ELECTION SCRAP

Ex-Governor Comes Out For McSweeney as Senator Endorses Bricker.

(By Associated Press)

Ohio's candidates for governor each won an endorsement last night.

Vic Donahey, three-term governor and former U. S. Senator, urged the election of John McSweeney, the Democratic standard-bearer, while U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft said that Governor John W. Bricker, a republican seeking his third term, should be re-elected.

At the same time, Bricker asserted in a state-wide radio address that Democratic platform pledges already were accomplishments of his Republican administration and that the platform was "a real commendation of our record."

The endorsement of each candidate was made in rallies at Lima. Donahey, appearing personally at the Democratic meeting, asserted:

"I have known the McSweeney family all my life. John McSweeney comes from a fine old Ohio family. He is capable, honest, and his public record is without blemish. I yield to no man in my love and respect for John McSweeney and sincerely urge his election."

Taft spoke at a Republican rally and predicted Bricker would be re-elected. "He should be," Taft added. "He has been a good governor."

Bricker delivered his weekly radio address from Cleveland, where he appeared at a series of rallies.

He said the Democratic platform pledged payment of the school debt and placing schools on a pay-as-you-go bases" the present administration had paid most of the debt, had money to liquidate the balance and schools already are on a cash basis, he said.

He noted a Democratic plank promises to aid agriculture by stamping out livestock diseases and constructing more agricultural buildings at Ohio State university; this has been done, he said.

Bricker defended again his administration's cooperation with the war effort and said McSweeney's assertion that it was "a joke" was "malicious and unpatriotic."

Provide more poultry and fish dishes, and those made from meat alternates such as cheese, beans and eggs.

Consumers have been asked to limit themselves to two and a half pounds of beef, veal, lamb, mutton or pork per person per week until the regular rationing of the meats becomes effective some time in January.

IT WAS JUST A SPAT, SO AVA AND MICKEY WILL START OVER

(By Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD—Mickey Rooney, at 21, and his wife, Ava Gardner, 19, are going to start life all over again.

That's what Miss Gardner said last night in announcing what at first inspection seemed a major domestic tragedy was in reality nothing but a family spat, and that she and her film star husband will take up where they left off last month, when she slapped a divorce suit on him.

"I'm dropping the suit," said Miss Gardner, a beautiful former model who has won some success in the films. "We're going to start all over again."

Miss Gardner, when she sued the effervescent, fun-loving youngster Sept. 15, charged him with cruelty, but listed no specific instances.

"It was just a family argument—I realize that now," she said last night. "And I still love him. Yes, Mickey can be the boss when he comes back if he wants to be."

Mickey, who was one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors when he married Ava last Jan. 10, wasn't available for comment.

During their separation Miss Gardner has been living at the Rooney honeymoon apartment in Beverly Hills.

And, she says, Mickey's moving back in next week.

Up and Down THE STREET

Pupils in Mansfield schools are going to have to wait until Thanksgiving for their first holiday this year, but they will have an extra day coming later. With teachers in the city schools deciding not to attend the annual Northwestern Ohio Teachers' association meeting in Cleveland Oct. 30, the board of education last night ruled out the holiday scheduled for that date. Since the schools would have completed their required 180-day schedule with Oct. 30 figured as a holiday they may get an extra holiday later in the school term.

Don't send Christmas gifts in an ordinary shoe box to soldiers overseas. This is the warning issued in a postal bulletin received by Postmaster Herman E. Homberger. Mention of a shoe box regarding overseas packages was made in an earlier bulletin merely to indicate the size of the package and not with the thought that it would be strong enough for the purpose. The bulletin carries a two-fold message pertinent to overseas packages as it also warns against sending food, first, because escaping crumbs attract vermin and secondly because "the forces are well-supplied with food."

Then he added, "Keep up the good work." The Cadets bade "good-bye" to another member of the organization at the last drill session when Dick Heiser announced his intentions of joining the navy. FOUND GUILTY OF COUNSELING DRAFT EVASION

Judge to Announce Penalties Tomorrow; Jury Deliberates on Case Five Hours.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Twenty-four leaders of the German-American bund will be sentenced tomorrow by Federal Judge Alfred D. Barksdale for conspiracy to counsel resistance to the selective service act.

A federal court jury found the 24 guilty late last night after deliberating more than five hours. They face sentences of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine each.

Ferdinand Callsen, South Bend, Ind., bund official, was found not guilty of the charge by the jury.

Callsen was the only one of the 25 national and local bund leaders to be found not guilty but he was remanded to jail by Judge Barksdale to face another indictment charging conspiracy to violate the alien registration law.

All the national officers of the bund were convicted. They were Gerhardt Wilhelm Kunze, bund fuehrer and confessed Nazi spy; Gustav Elmer, bund treasurer; August Klapprott, Gauleiter Ost, or head of the eastern division; Herman Schwinn, head of the bund's western department; and Wilbur V. Keegan, bund counsel.

The prosecution of the bund leaders were conducted by the office of United States District Attorney Matthias F. Correa and it was charged that Kunze issued a secret order through the bundesbefel (bund command) which read in part:

"We (the German-American bund) represent the standpoint that an induction in the military service is not justified as far as it concerns bund members and American Germans, for in the selective service law the citizenship rights of bund members and the defenders of Germandom are unconstitutionally severed.

"Every man, if he can, will refuse to do military duty until this law and all other laws of the country and the states, which confine citizenship rights of bund members are revoked. We will fight to establish a precedent in this servile matter."

Eleven attorneys defended the bund members and contended, for the most part, that the bund merely wanted to make a test case of the draft act. Howard F. Corcoran, chief assistant to Correa, pointed out that in two years no move was made by the bund to make a test case.

New Kidnap Lead Blows Up, Police Still Lack Clues

COLUMBUS — (INS) — A new "lead" in Columbus' week-old kidnaping of 8-month-old Daniel Scanlon from St. Ann's infant asylum by an armed woman, was quickly exploded. Police Inspector Thomas A. Scully disclosed today.

Report of a man with a baby in the vicinity of St. Ann's brought about a police investigation which revealed that the man had taken the child to the asylum to visit his wife, confined to the maternity hospital with another daughter born Saturday.

Meanwhile, federal bureau of investigation agents took over the case, seven days from the time the baby was stolen. Intervention by the FBI becomes automatic if a kidnap victim is not found within seven days.

Mother of the missing baby is 17-year-old Jane Scanlon, an employe of St. Ann's.

Fitting Education To War Needs

WHILE it is the wartime situation, with draft of 18-year-olds in immediate prospect, that is raising the issue at this time, discussion of the American educational system is timely—and a subject on which layman opinion may prove as worthwhile as that of professional educators.

The present pattern of education in the United States follows along the line of starting at the age of 6; using eight years in passing through the grades; four for high school (or 6-3-3, as in use here), and four years to attain a bachelor's degree in college, with further college or university work required to be admitted to a profession.

This subject has been long and futilely discussed but it is an idea presented by Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, that enlivens interest in it at this time. In the opinion of Dr. Hutchins it would be practical to shorten college requirements for a bachelor's degree to two years, after which a graduate could decide whether to go to work or continue with studies needed in a profession or other vocation.

As might be expected, opinion among local educators differs on this subject, and one difficulty in connection with the problem involved hinges on a requirement to fit an educational system to the needs of below average scholastic ability, rather than above, and to devote time to "frills" and extra-curricular activities that many regard as non-essential to adequate schooling.

If college is to be eliminated from consideration by a large majority of boys, because of lowering the draft age to 18, it appears that the present 6-3-3 division, which carries the child through to high school graduation, can be improved upon only by making such changes in the curriculum as will give students the maximum of essential education within that time.

But if present discussion is intended to furnish the design for a postwar educational plan the proposal of Dr. Hutchins seems to merit serious consideration.

Plenty of Coffee—In Brazil

FURTHER proof of the fallacy of isolationism, if any is needed, is found in the fact that surplus coffee is being burned in Brazil, by the millions of pounds, while there is a considerable shortage of this commodity in the United States.

The explanation, of course, is that ships cannot be spared to bring coffee from Brazil because of the urgent need to transport war materials, and it is predicted that the coffee supply will again become plentiful as soon as time can be given to divert a convoyed shipment to Brazil so that coffee can be brought on the return trip.

The submarine menace along the east coast has prevented safe travel by unprotected ships, thus interfering with the customary interchange of commodities between the two continents of this hemisphere.

There is plenty of coffee for everybody—but it's in Brazil instead of in the United States.

Home-Heating With Less Fuel

WITH fuel economy enjoined, and possibility of higher prices, old-time fuel thrift is in order. This is the time to get ready for it. People who have been accustomed to 70 or 75 degrees of heat are expected to get it down to 65 or less.

This naturally means less fuel for the furnace. It also means warmer clothing than has been customary in recent years.

It means closing off rooms that are not really needed for living, thus saving heat.

It means considerable use of a grate fire if there is one in the living room, thus enabling the family to save furnace fuel.

It means, in many cases, keeping up a fire in the kitchen stove and spending the evenings there; and lucky are the people with old-fashioned kitchens.

It is well not to overlook the old practice of keeping warm by going out into the cold. That is, hardening yourself so that you do not need so high a temperature indoors.

Guadalcanal's Sudden Prominence

WHO could have imagined, a year ago, that in October of this year the minds and hearts of the American people would be focused on one of the Solomon islands in the southwestern Pacific, nearly half a world away? And an island which to the few Americans who knew of its existence was merely a spot on the map?

Yet within a few weeks Guadalcanal has become as familiar a name as Cuba or Luzon. And it has been realized that on the battle being fought there between the Japanese and Americans may depend the outcome of the present Japanese-American war for at least another year.

Florida Offers Helping Hand

A NOTABLE change has been observed lately. Some Florida resorts are sending out publicity matter for the winter season without any bathing girl pictures. This is revolutionary procedure, but suited to the mood of the time.

And what does the reading matter say? Its appeal for patronage is in good taste. It says: "War doesn't put out the sunshine. It doesn't roll up the beaches. It doesn't black out the moon. It doesn't take in the stars. It doesn't chill our temperature. It doesn't destroy our natural beauty. It doesn't get us down. We are helping to win the war."

There are many ways to help, and doubtless they also serve who provide rest and sunshine and white beaches instead of guns and shells. The sick need them, and there are times when those who are well need refreshment and relaxation.

It now appears that Joe Louis meant "temporary" instead of "permanent" when he announced retirement from the ring.

Just like back in his old paper-hanging days, Hitler seems to be having trouble making things stick.

Dewey Favored In New York Race

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Betting odds are quoted in New York as being better than two to one on Thomas E. Dewey to beat Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr. for governor. If these odds should be justified, New York will have its first Republican governor since Nate Miller was swept into office on the Harding landslide of 1920. That was the historic election which made Alfred E. Smith a presidential possibility, for he ran more than a million votes ahead of his ticket, and yet was defeated by a small majority.

If Dewey should happen to be elected by a small majority—anything less than four or five hundred thousand—there will be political repercussions which it is almost impossible to exaggerate. Most of the regular Democrats, beyond question, will blame President Roosevelt.

It is true that the president belatedly came out for Bennett, but it is also true that he hurt Bennett enormously by strong opposition to his nomination, and by his quoted statements that Bennett could not be elected.

But that is only part of it. If Dewey's plurality should be smaller than the total vote cast for Dean Alfange, the Labor Party's candidate, that will be taken as proof that the president could have elected Bennett had he so desired. Rightly or wrongly most New Yorkers, whether for or against the president, believe that the Labor Party would do anything he wanted, and that if he wished to call off its campaign, and urged the party to support Bennett, it would do so.

ANOTHER important cog in this reasoning is that Mayor LaGuardia, AFTER the President had come out for Bennett, announced that he would support Alfange.

No one believes that LaGuardia, whom no one has ever accused of political stupidity, believes that Alfange has a Chinaman's chance of being elected. Hence it seems a fair deduction that actually Mr. LaGuardia wants Dewey elected, or, perhaps, to put it more accurately, he wants Bennett defeated.

Again, no one believes that LaGuardia is particularly interested in either electing Dewey or defeating Bennett so far as those two men are concerned, what he really wants, it is believed, is precisely what so many people suspect the president of wanting—the crushing of James A. Farley, Bennett's backer.

Two persons out of three with whom one talks about this situation in New York believe firmly that the president, though he dislikes Dewey and does not like to think of a Republican victory in the Empire State, thinks it more important to discipline and crush an insubordinate lieutenant—Farley—than to have a Democratic governor of New York.

Political lines as a result of all this are unbelievably confused in New York. Two persons out of every three with whom the writer talked on a recent visit believe Dewey will be elected. The only doubt, one man very close to Dewey said, was that Farley was so SURE that Bennett would win. And Farley, he added, has never been wrong!

Many lifelong Democrats are going to vote for Dewey, some because they think that is what the president would like them to do. Many lifelong Republicans are going to vote for Bennett, because they also think the president wants Dewey to win! Farley has friends in both parties. Dewey has plenty of enemies among the Republicans. And lots of people won't say HOW they are going to vote!

We Walk Alone

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ONE of the toughest lessons we must face in this life is the discovery that we must always walk alone. No matter how popular we are, no matter how deeply beloved, no matter how deserving of understanding and sympathy, we must live in solitude.

Even as tiny children this realization begins unconsciously. We have scores of playmates and a succession of chums, but one after another they disappoint and enrage us. They refuse to do the things we want to do . . . they refuse to be part of us. So we discard Jenny or Jimmy and cast in our lot with Rose or Rob. But the result is always the same—we never quite fit each other. Yet we go on hoping that somewhere, some day, we'll find the perfect friend.

But we never do.

I'm thinking of that wonderful paragraph in Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpence": "Each one of us is alone in the world. He is shut in a tower of brass, and can communicate with his fellows only by signs, and the signs have no common value so that their sense is vague and uncertain. We seek pitifully to convey to others the treasures of our hearts, but they have not the power to accept them, and so we go lonely, side by side but not together, unable to know our fellows and unknown by them."

WHAT a tremendous difference it would make in our lives if we could accept this truth! So much of our misery is caused because we are seeking a sentimental relationship which can never be and which should never be. We expect the impossible, and when it does not occur we blame the other fellow. We feel that he has failed us, violated some fundamental duty.

But we're wrong. Our main job in life is not to understand or be understood. Our main job is to grow . . . to follow our own patterns, meet our own challenges, endure our own loneliness. This does not mean that we should stint our affection or our service to those with whom we live.

To the contrary, it means that we should live as graciously, joyfully and generously as lies within our power, for that is the very means by which we do grow. But we must learn from the very first to accept loneliness as our inevitable heritage and not to condemn others because they cannot free us from its burden.

A child may cling to its mother's apron while it still toddles. But you despise a mature man who still tries to cling to someone else's strength for all his comfort and inspiration. Yet most of us do exactly that and we inevitably fail. Then we grow bitter and feel that we have been betrayed.

We have not been betrayed. It is as much our duty to live on our own resources as it is to wash our own ears, and every time we fail to do it—or blame the other fellow because we can't do it—we are two-timing our own characters.

Lonely? Then face it and accept it. It's as necessary and inevitable for your growth as food, water and air. And you'll never be born into full maturity until you learn that fact.

Interpreting the War News

Youthful Airmen From America Behave Gallantly In Sky Battles

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

UNITED STATES Bomber Wing Operational Headquarters, Somewhere In Britain—You can talk about your new weapons with staggering efficiency, but this fresh world conflict produced no greater marvel than the adaptability of our young airmen—most of them were boys in years—to the complicated science of waging war from the skies.

We have seen this in the battle with the barbarians of the Pacific. And we are seeing it now as Uncle Sam's bombers begin to scourge Hitler's defenses in western Europe.

Mind you, the vast majority of our air forces aren't even veteran fliers, to say nothing of their innocence in actual combat. Yet we now see them taking to the air in great four-engined bombers.

Did you ever see one of these leviathans? In matter of mechanical equipment they are like submarines on wings. Yet our fledgling birdmen are taking to these grim giants as though the B-27s and B-24s were the incubators which hatched them. They fly 'em and they make 'em fight.

Now this transition of an airman from a novice to a proved warrior is a mental reaction which comes when he first goes under fire.

Upon that reaction depends whether his mind automatically becomes a cool, sure, fast-thinking machine or whether it collapses. And no man can tell in advance how his mind will act.

NATURALLY the period of preparation for the first raid causes fierce nerve tension. You find the first pre-raid-tension involves three things: Fear of being afraid; fear of doing something which will endanger one's comrades or the safety of a great warplane; and fear of failing to execute the expected coup against the enemy. The thought of personal safety is so deeply submerged beneath these other things that it is difficult to find.

Intermingled with these, of course, are many other thoughts. I was chatting with young Lieut.-Col. Paul Tibbets of Miami, Fla., one of the European war heroes. He was awarded the Purple Heart for his part in the Aug. 24 raid over Le Trait, France.

Tibbets told me that while he was waiting for his first raid he was sick with the thoughts of the civilians who might suffer from the bombs dropped by his machine.

The colonel paused for a moment and his eyes sought the far-off horizon. Then he added, hesitatingly:

"You see, I have a three-year-old boy of my own at home. I hate to think of him playing near a bomber factory. That makes me careful.

After novices have passed through their baptism of fire without their nerves breaking, they develop confidence which makes subsequent situations vastly easier.

Here I should say that my observations in the last war brought me to the definite conclusion that the man with "nerves" who does have doubts and qualms before he goes into his first combat is the one who makes the best soldier. He is the one with intelligence.

Generalities never are true, but broadly speakling if you will show me a man who has no "nerves", and appears to be absolutely fearless, I will show you one who is of low intelligence. Actually he is the one who goes to pieces in the great emergency, and I have seen this demonstrated time and again.

That Le Trait raid was a nasty show for Tibbets, but it showed the stuff of which he and his crew was made. He was attacked by four German fighters who shot his ship up so badly he was forced out of squadron formation. The Boche threw one shell right into the cockpit where it exploded, wounding Tibbets and one of his crew.

Tibbets managed to get a tourniquet on. In the meantime the gunner in the ball turret, that funny little buttle on the belly of the ship where a man curls up like a squirrel, had two toes and one foot shot off. Despite his own wound, Tibbets managed to get his damaged ship under the formation for protection and plioted it home, though it was so badly damaged it had to be replaced.

"The ball turret gunner was fighting mad when he came out of the turret," said the colonel with a grin. "I got mad only after we were safely across the channel and I had time to think about what had happened."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

(Second in a series on enlisting in the fighting forces.)

WASHINGTON — Where does a man enlist?

That's easy. At his local (or in the case of small towns and country districts, his nearest) recruiting station.

There are, however, several things in connection with visiting the recruiting station that every potential enlistee should memorize.

For example, recruiting stations are no chambers of horrors. You are absolutely under no obligations when you walk into one and ask for all the dope they have on any branch of the services you are interested in, and they have plenty. They are the information bureaus of the armed forces.

* * *

I COULD fill a dozen columns with facts and figures about how you can make $168-a-month plus as a petty officer in the navy; how to get a commission in the army by qualifying for the officers' training school or the officers' candidate school; what route you take to become a combat pilot and what other routes you take to get into the army, navy, marine and coast guard air forces; how to get in the navy if you are only 17; and what branches of the other services are open to 18- and 19-year-olds.

THE coast guard and marines are the navy, although in many cities they have their own recruiting stations.

If you can make the grade, they offer faster advancement in pay and ratings (particularly in the case of the marines and navy) than does the army. Out of the wartime complement of a modern battleship, there are less than 100 "non-rated men"—that is men of a grade lower than third class petty officer.

If a man wants to enlist, yet wants to earn more than minimum base pay, he should play his own personnel officer — examine all of his abilities in the light of demands from all branches of the service and then hit the recruiting stations for all the information along those lines.

If he can't find it in the army, navy, marine corps or coast guard, there are also the seabees (construction battalion of the navy) and the army specialist corps who don't quite have to measure up to the physical standards for fighting men.

Man About Manhattan

Old Junk, Old Words

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—We had a big scrap, metal salvage campaign in our neck of the woods the other day, and walking along the sidewalk noticing the miscellaneous piles of junk waiting for pickup I couldn't help but think of all the words, or common nouns to appear more learned, that have gone into the scrap heap too.

For instance, I saw a sad-iron in one pile. The average teen-age girl of today probably never heard of a sad-iron, but their mothers and grandmothers certainly have!

Old uses, old ways . . . this scrap metal drive, digging deep into forgotten relics in the basement and attic, actually punctuates the story of this age which has seen so many changes in methods of heating, lighting, transportation and communication. We can get along fine without these useless reminders of the clumsy old ways.

IT WOULD be a fine thing if our wartime economies would carry over into the coming days of peace. Our national prosperity would be a great deal sounder. But our memories grow short, and it often costs more to save something than the object is worth. Perhaps annual salvage campaigns would be the answer, with the proceeds going, possibly, to the support of war widows, orphans and hospitalized veterans.

Along in this vein, the "Keys to Victory" campaign, I am told, will be continued although the present drive for a hundred million old keys has officially been completed. It only recently has become possible to smelt down profitably the valuable metals used in keys, and there is no good reason why this economy should be ended with the war.

As individuals, after the war, we again will be inclined to think of a useless key as something to throw away, but if we could know that in a certain store there was a certain container for discarded keys, and that said keys would be melted down by the thousands with the proceeds going to some good cause, we might carry those keys around until we happened to visit that store.

No matter what economies we may forget, however, we should remember that it turned out to be a bad idea to be the world's junkman, selling scrap iron to anyone who could furnish a ship and haul it away. Wouldn't grandmother feel badly if she knew one of her old sad-irons had come back in the shape of a bullet fired at her grandson?

* * *

SPEAKING of economies, my friend, John Christie, the little Greek waiter at G. R.'s clam house on West 49th, thinks that a lot of otherwise good coffee goes to waste because the household cook doesn't know how to make a decent cup even though she uses the proper amount of a good brand. After the percolator has boiled a minute or two, John suggests that it be taken off the flame and the grounds stirred with a spoon, thus loosening them so that there is even seepage. Sounds practical, doesn't it?

A Farmer's Diary

Potato Blight

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALL LAST WINTER, a nearby farmer hauled fine quality stable manure on what was going to be his potato patch. I saw him often, emptying the spreader on skiffs of snow and frozen ground. By early spring the litter covered the surface well and enriched the sandy loam beneath.

When he plowed, I noticed that the deeply soaked topsoil mixed with lighter earth beneath, so that the entire plot appeared like a deep rich garden bed. Sometime later, after April and May showers had come and gone, he disked it thoroughly and put in his seed, with a one-row planter. For several weeks the heaped up rows of earth appeared like etchings, discernible for their straight long lines across the field. Bold, deep green sprouts, and in another week, the rows were green. Abundant rains and rich soil made the growth prodigious. Fall grass, ragweeds and asters lagged far behind. Often I walked up that way to admire the growing potato crop.

Three weeks after wheat harvest, the tall heavy-bodied plants stood like soft green plumes and shaded the space between the rows. Then something happened.

Almost within a single day, the leaves began to droop and show drab, wasted areas near the tip. With each day that passed, this space increased and the moisture in the tissues of the leaves began to disappear. From the gravel road, I could detect the odors of the shriveling plants, and when the summer wind blew down upon them, they rustled as though frosted.

Then the waiting weeds and grass sprang up without check, and made the rich surface green again. During mid-October the farmer mowed the patch of weeds and piled them up, when dry, for burning. One afternoon this corner of the slope was hidden in smoke from numerous flaming piles. The smoke settled low along the valley.

When he started digging potatoes, I watched, hopefully. Instead of a line of smooth white tubers, the blighted crop was sickly, small —even absent.

One neighbor who planted two full acres, last week, bought potatoes for his family and seed for next spring. I had an acre which yielded about ten bushels, most of them the size of hickorynuts. Commercial growers and victory gardeners, who are equipped to spray much and often with poisonous sprays will soon be the quality and quantity producers of this crop. Next year I shall plant only a small patch that can be sprayed by hand.

PASSING DREAM

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XXV

Temple stood by the window and looked down at the quiet, dark street, unconscious of physical fatigue. Love does not die. You pass it . . . You leave it as you leave one place for another place. The place you left is not dishonored because you have chosen a new place. There is no scar, no disrepute . . . There should never be.

She had tried to keep the image of the Jud she had first known real and vivid and warming. But it had slipped away quietly and coolly. It had begun to happen in Florida where she had been content to be his companion and where now she knew she would have been just as happy with any young man as amusing and as personable as Jud.

The things he had said had not rung true. As her words had been only black marks on clean white paper, so Jud's words had been spoken from a vacuum in his heart. But he had said, "I love you more than anyone in the world, Temple" . . . She thought, "And I could tell you, Jud, tell you honestly that I love you. I love you, but the heart has gone out of it, the warmth or the magic or the attraction of whatever it is that holds two people together and sets them apart from all other people for each other.

"I love you for what we had together. That's why you love me . . . for what we had that is gone. I didn't want to admit that a war marriage and a secret marriage is wrong for two people who haven't known each other long enough, for two people who rush into marriage before they are ready for it . . . You were right, Jud. It was a dream. It was a passing dream."

December 7, 1941, came as any other Sunday morning in Washington. The lesser traffic moved less frantically and the people took longer to eat breakfast and read the papers, mispronouncing the names of the Japanese envoys in Washington, and talked of Christmas. Everyone felt snug and safe and childishly trustful. Uniforms were still so much in the minority that they punctured any gathering, like sparse commas. The sun glistened on the dome of the Capitol and the Washington monument looked up fearlessly at the clear winter sky.

Temple came down the steps at her boarding house to meet Harry. She had a small white package tied with red ribbon in her hand. She smiled gravely. She smiled wisely, too. She knew her way now. She knew that mentally she was driving the wrong way on a one-way street and that the street was too narrow and cluttered for her to turn around. She would have to go along the wrong way on the one-way street . . . That was the answer, the sad true answer.

The half-truths and the misty dreams were gone. She could write to Jud. She could read his letters with tenderness and understanding, knowing how hard he was trying to amuse her, knowing how hard he was trying to keep her living with the half-truths and the misty dreams. She loved him, but it was because of the dream that they had had. Always she would love him for that. But it had ended there. It had ended in May after a honeymoon of three days.

She could not tell him. If theirs had not been a war marriage and he had been here, observing her, seeing her frequently, he would have seen her unhappiness and her regrets. But hundreds of miles separated them and they would have to continue to write in their mood of last May. Because theirs was a war marriage and a secret marriage.

He looked shocked and shamed. Then he shook his head and smiled a little and said gravely, "I can't accept it, Temple. It isn't my birthday."

"Oh!" She colored. Then she smiled. "They're . . . they're imported cigarets. I suppose we could smoke them at dinner."

"Yes, we could . . ."

She smiled again. "Where shall we have your birthday dinner?"

"You're sweet. Purposely, of course, to make me reproach myself. I do. It was a mean trick. But I do know a place. It isn't elegant but it's—it's cozy."

* * *

He stopped to buy a newspaper before he took her to a small place. A few tables and chairs comprised a private dining-room behind a bar. A solicitious bartender greeted them as though they were old friends.

Temple said, pulling off her beige gloves, "Now I've been everywhere."

Harry laughed. "Always the original one, I! Someone told me about this place, gave me the pass word. I might even glance at the headlines of the paper while you are smoking one of your cigarets." But he folded his arms and leaned across the table. "What have you been doing, Temple?"

What had she been doing? Destroying a dream as a child knocks down a house made of blocks.

"I haven't been doing anything exciting, Harry."

"You look better. Not tied in knots. You're lovely. You're not only a girl to want, Temple. You're a girl to think about."

"I'm also a girl who has been thinking a lot."

"I thought so."

"What have you been doing?"

He frowned and smiled. "Must we? I will if you insist. But must we say the same things everyone says?"

"Why not? Are we so special?"

"I think we are. The people in your town probably would relish this situation, don't you think? Harry and Temple sitting at a table behind a bar in Washington. They've come quite a way. They've picked up a few of the correct answers."

"People in the town didn't understand you."

"Because as a single man I wouldn't allow myself to be put on a leash? It's surprising at what lengths some girls will go to make a conquest. A few of them wanted to make a conquest of me and parade me around as though I were a prize bull. Nothing is quite so wonderful to a woman as a man with a reputation for being a woman hater. I don't hate women. I'm particularly fond of them, but I still hold to the masculine prerogative of doing my own picking. I picked you a long time ago. I've been waiting for you to grow up."

She looked down at the newspaper on the table and fingered the edges. "Why does growing up mean suffering and making mistakes? Why must it be that way? When I look at Allison, my little sister, I dread her growing up. And she wants to grow up so badly. When I'm home she's always putting on my high heels. Is that why the faces of old people are sad, not because of their years, but because of the things the years have done to them? It makes you afraid of living when you want terribly to live . . . I'm sorry. I'm being very dull."

"You're being very honest and I love you for it. You didn't ask me to share this with you. I asked for it. I'm with you and not with one of several girls I know here who would try to make me laugh—because I want to be with you. You will laugh again, Temple. You're not a person to laugh often but when you do . . . I've heard your laughter . . . It's soft, rich laughter. And you will chatter again as all women chatter. And you will be exquisitely happy again. No one human relationship is going to knock you out for good. It does to few people and they are undeveloped personalities usually, if that's any comfort to you."

"Thank you. But it isn't comfort I want."

"What do you want?"

Freedom, she thought. I want my freedom. Don't you want your freedom, Jud?

She said, "I'd like my dinner, please."

He laughed again. "Fine. But it seems they have left us strictly alone. I'd better go out and see Gus about it."

He rose and left her, moving with his quick sureness. Her eyes followed him. She saw him speaking to Gus, a large man with a florid, pock-marked face. She looked down at the newspaper again, looking at it absently and without concentration.

As she read, "The bodies of Lieutenant Carter Jennings of Tulsa, Okla., and Private Judson Amory of Boston, Mass., who crashed near Miami yesterday were recovered and brought to Morrison Field today . . . Their nearest of kin . . . An investigation is pending . . ." the radio blared forth the news of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Temple tried to rise, but the earth seemed to be shaking. She tried to read those black words on white paper again . . . She tried to hear what was being shouted over the radio, but the earth had perished . . . Suddenly all the lights were going out.

From where I sit....

by Joe Marsh

DON'T ever argue with Grandma Hoskins about American history unless you know what you're talking about. Because when Grandma states a fact, it really is a fact.

The other day we got to talking about George Washington — who besides being a great general, was a public surveyor, a successful farmer, and a wise statesman.

"And he made mighty good beer, too," says Grandma.

That was news to most of us.

"You can see his private recipe for beer right in the New York Public Library," Grandma Hoskins tells us. "In his own handwriting, at that."

* * *

And then she opened up on how Washington and those others who founded America believed in beer and moderation. Told us about William Penn who had his own brewery down in Pennsylvania, and Israel Putnam . . . Samuel Adams of Massachusetts and James Oglethorpe of Georgia.

"Beer," Grandma goes on, "has grown up with the country because it's a symbol of good fellowship and moderation."

Way back in 1789, she told us, James Madison stood up in the House of Representatives and made the motion urging "the manufacture of beer in every State of the Union." And that same year Massachusetts passed an act stating that "the wholesome qualities of malt liquors greatly recommend them to general use."

From there on—until early in 1918, the brewing industry kept growing and beer and ale kept getting better and better.

Then came prohibition . . . thirteen dark years that bred vice and crime. Grandma says it taught us something though—something that George Washington and all those other early American statesmen knew all along . . . that no law ever takes the place of self-restraint and moderation.

* * *

That's why they were friends of beer and made moderation a cornerstone of American freedom. They were right about a lot of things—Washington and Adams and Penn. And from where I sit, they certainly were right about moderation, too.

Round Table Club Enjoys Book Review

The Round Table club met for a delightful dessert luncheon at the Women's Club on Monday afternoon, with Mrs. Edwin Mansfield as hostess. Twenty-four members and one guest were seated at small tables centered with bouquets of vari-colored baby mums. Mrs. J. E. Clark, a former member of the club and now a resident of Columbus, was the guest.

She gave a most interesting review of the book, "Before Life Began," by Dard Hunter. She mentioned that he got the inspiration for the title from the book "Life Begins at Forty." It is an autobiography and tells of his very extensive world travels, and his research into the printing business. There are only 219 copies of the book in print and it is very beautifully done.

Following this review a news discussion was led by Mrs. C. C. Wagner on "Schools and the War." Mrs. George Anson talked concerning the Mansfield schools, and Mrs. S. A. Richardson discussed the topic "Must All Workers Be Drafted?" A general discussion was held by the group after this. Dr. Ada Ford will be hostess to the club for their next meeting on Nov. 2 at 1:30 at the Women's Club.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I know, Carolyn," I said understandingly. "You wish you could bring yourself to tell me your secret, and I am ready to hear it at any time, and to help you in any way I can. But just now, try to relax, knowing you no longer have any need to be terrified."

"Except for Marion," she reminded me sadly.

"Yes, that terror hangs over all of us," I answered. "But we are now sure that Marion is in no immediate danger, especially," I added meaningly, "now that you are no longer in league with the men holding her. That is a great load off our minds and hearts."

"I'll promise that load will never return," she said solemnly. I kissed her wistful face before I went to the door and beckoned Miss Whitlock inside.

"We are going back to the Underwoods almost immediately," I told her. "I'll call you when we're ready to start."

Then I went out to my father and Dicky.

"Well?" they both queried.

Reports To Spencer.

"It's all right," I told them. "We shall have no more trouble with Carolyn, and can start to the Underwoods any time. I'm sure she will make no further effort to get in touch with the gangsters, but I think she ought to be guarded so that no emissary from them can reach her."

"She shall be, never fear," my father said. "And now the sooner we get started, the sooner we'll all be able to get some needed sleep."

"We're all ready," I told him, and in five minutes we were on our way to the Underwood home.

My father, after learning from the guard that everything had been quiet since we left, ushered us into the library, then turned to Miss Whitlock.

"Do you think Mrs. Underwood may be awake?" he asked.

"I am very sure she is," the nurse replied. "She was very much upset, and has had no sedative."

My father then turned to me. "Do you wish to talk to Lillian now?" he asked.

"Yes, if Miss Whitlock thinks it advisable."

To See Lillian.

"I don't imagine I shall be permitted to think, if Mrs. Underwood learns you are in the house," the nurse said. "She will be determined to see you."

"Then I will go to her at once," I said. "Please take Carolyn to your room until I come for you."

Then I ran up the stairs to Lillian's room and knocked lightly.

"Come in!" she called, and when I entered I saw that sadness of disillusionment over Carolyn had been added to her terror over Marion.

"I am a woman who has been 'mistook in her judgments'," I told her lightly, "and I have come to set things right."

"What do you mean?" she asked, startled. "That you were mistaken about Carolyn?"

"Yes—and no," I said. "It's true that she was trying to use you in order to meet that collegiate gangster, but she has not been disloyal to Marion. Everything she has done has been motivated by terror."

Enlists Sympathy.

Swiftly I recounted then the events at the hideaway, including Carolyn's confession.

"She still keeps her personal secret of the hold the collegiate gangster has over her," I said, "but she sees the danger and futility of trying to get in touch with any of his gang, so I am sure we shall have no more trouble with her; at least, on that score."

"That's good news," she said a little heavily, and I saw that she could not so quickly forget Carolyn's lie about Marion.

"Yes, it is," I returned banally, then put my hand on her shoulder. "Carolyn is suffering, Lillian," I said, "and she is deeply ashamed of the trouble she has caused you. She—she needs mothering, dear."

Halloween Party Held In Pavilion By Committees

A Halloween party was enjoyed at Liberty park pavilion last evening by members of the hospital guild and war relief committees of the Women of the Moose. Mrs. Hazel Donley was a guest. Prize for the past masquerade costume went to Mrs. Esther Rist. Mrs. E. M. Tinkey received the award for the most comic costume.

Card games were enjoyed with Mrs. Alice Mast and Mrs. Amelia Bletz winning the prizes. Appropriate appointments for the luncheon table included pumpkins, flowers and candles carrying out the Halloween theme. The two committees will have charge of a Christmas party at the Moose home on Dec. 7. New candidates will be honored at that time.

Mrs. Eva Schultz will entertain the hospital guild committee at the Colonial Guest House on Nov. 16, and Mrs. Tinkey will be hostess to the war relief group at her home, 200 Bowland road, on Nov. 9.

Recent Bride Is Honored At Party

In honor of her sister, Mrs. W. R. Jackson, a recent bride, Mrs. James Logsdon entertained Friday evening at her home, 222 Abbeyfeale road, with a dessert bridge. Luncheon was served at small tables centered with rose bowls and appointments carried out in pink and white. The bride's table was centered with a large bride and groom. Bridge was played at six tables with Mrs. H. Garrison and Miss Marianne Kuhn winning high scores. They presented their gifts to the honoree. Mrs. Jackson was the recipient of a shower of miscellaneous gifts from her friends while the hostess presented her with an electrical gift.

SOROSIS, T-W CLUB PLANS.

The Mansfield Sorosis club will be entertained at the Women's Club at 7:30 o'clock this evening by Mrs. Edward Gibson. Meeting of the Teachers' Wives club will be held at the Women's Club at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening with Mrs. H. D. Bishop as hostess.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOSE ONE TO WIN TWO

Every bridge player knows what is meant by the word "finesse." But nobody has ever defined it thoroughly. Perhaps doing so is not easy. Years ago the great White had defined one as "an effort to win a trick with a card which is lower than some other card of the suit held by an opponent." There are several plays easily recognizable as finesses which are not covered by that. One of these is the case in which you intentionally lose a finesse, for the purpose of creating an entry or entries to a holding.

	♠ J 10 9 8 5 3 ♥ A 10 6 ♦ 8 ♣ K 8 2
♠ A Q ♥ K 9 7 3 ♦ A K 7 5 ♣ Q 7 4	N W E S	♠ K 7 4 2 ♥ J 5 ♦ 10 9 6 ♣ A J 9 3
	♠ 6 ♥ Q 8 4 2 ♦ Q J 4 3 2 ♣ 10 6 5

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Notice the difference in play of that contract at two tables of a duplicate. In each case it began with North leading the spade J to the Q, the club Q then being covered by the K and A, the diamond 10 by the J and A and the spade A then being laid down to clear the way for the K when West got into the dummy. Then came the single difference.

To the fifth trick, the club 7 was led at each table, but one declarer called for the J from the dummy. He then scored the spade K, led the diamond 9, which South properly refused to cover, and then finessed the diamond 7—a marked finesse. The diamond K made his ninth trick. After he gave up a club with 4 to the 9 and 10, South cashed the last diamond, led a heart to the A and the spade 10 took the last trick, West just making his contract.

The other West played the fifth trick differently. He saw that if North had the club 10, and the suit divided evenly, a finesse of the 9 would give him four tricks in the suit instead of two. If either of those desirable facts existed, he would get three tricks instead of two. So he finessed the 9, perfectly willing to lose if necessary. He did. South returned the heart 2 to the A, and North fired back another heart to the K. Now a club to the J made possible cashing of the 3. The spade K was taken, the diamond 9 sent through, the 7 also finessed and the K took the closing trick. Because of a single different play, that declarer made two extra tricks, one of them in clubs and one in hearts, as both spades and diamonds were stopped at the time he gave the enemy the lead.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A K 2 ♥ Q 8 3 2 ♦ A K 7 ♣ J 5 3
♠ Q 8 7 5 4 ♥ 10 ♦ 9 8 6 2 ♣ A K 10	N W E S	♠ J 10 6 ♥ A 9 7 6 4 ♦ 4 ♣ Q 5 3
	♠ 9 3 ♥ K J ♦ J 10 4 ♣ Q 9 7 6 4 2

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

If North opens this deal with 1-Heart, South bids 2-Clubs, North 2-No Trumps and South 3-Clubs, what should North then do?

PLAN SALE AT MEETING.

Zeta Rho chapter of Delta Theta Tau held a business meeting last night at which time plans were made to sell Christmas cards and stationery.
